

1001. HENRY PETERSON & CO., Publishers, PHILADELPHIA, SATURDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1865. Price 98.56 A Year, in Advance. Whele Sun No. 310 Walnut St., Philad's. Philaden. Whele Sun No. 310 Walnut St., Philad's.

" MARRIED."

WRITTEN FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING PO BY H. S. COREY.

The blow hath struck, and suddenly; it s me to the du other wear the wealth of worship

I little thought the agony that surged in the Could ripple into blespedness; a new love its spell

Above the old love's glow and gi
som and its blight;
And a dear presence crowd my fac dreams to-night. dreams to light, amples press thy bosom now; her han among thy hair estiled lovingly as mine in sunny days the were;

Her lips are meeting blessed lips, are touching cheek and brow,
And shaping old caressing words to mine for-bidden now.

I seem to hear them syllable the pet names o'er and o'er;

I see the white arms folded where my own were clasped of yore,
I hear thy softly answering voice; its echoe forget! Oh for the rest the sleepers find the s flowers beneath!

I wonder if I should forget this bitterness I thought the torture of the past, the long an heavy pain, bbed itself to sleep at last, and could n wall sgain.

That the suffering, the sharp regret, had worn tuelf away;

And life for both had grown a still, sad, shroud ed, autumn day.

It is not so! Mine hath the storm that darkens

The part of the form of the fo

PERLADRIPUL SUPPRIAT, PROP'S SI, 1865 THE PEARTON OF THE PORCET. BY EMERSON BENNETT.

In our next paper—the first of the New Year—we design publishing the commencement of Mr. Bunnets's promised story, which will run regh from about twelve to fifteen pur

We trust that these of our old subscribe have not renewed their subscriptions will not on their names at once, as there very prob-bly will be a great demand for the numbers making Mr. Bonnett's story, which may azset the supply. And wheever else may be we should dislike to tell any of old friends that the edition was exhausted, and that we could not supply them with back

A CURIOUS CASE.

ion. Elimabeth Akers Allen (recently Mrs. irs) began writing many years ago under the abure of Florence Percy. Under that name has published a large number of beautiful Postones of America.

Three or four years ago we received a letter from a gentieman in one of the North-Western states, saying that a lady in his neighborhood claimed to be Fiorence Perey, and saking whether it was so. We replied, stating who Florence Perey really was—and this was the last we heard of that Western claimant, though we have an idea that there were reveral others in other parts of the country.

Now we notice that in Mrs. Swissbelm's "Re-constructionist," lately commenced in Washing-ton, she gives the credit of the fine poem of "Rock Me to Sleep, Mother," to a "Miss Lizzy Alger," of New York City. Mrs. Swissbelm says:—

"Rock Mx to Sikky, Movins."—This exquisite poem which has been repeatedly set to music, and him become household words in millions of homes, was written by Mim Likey Alger. of New York City. She wrole it in Europe, while overwhelmed with grief for the loss of the mother so touchingly called. She sent a copy to her guardian, Dr. Clarke, an eminent surgeon of New York City, who had one hundred copier printed on white sain, and distributed is the personal friends of the writer. We are well sequainted with a lody in Washington, a near relative of the lamented Major-General Sedgewick, to whom one of those copies was sent, and who shorshed it years before the poem first appeared under the signature of Floreace Percy. We have the Sham from this lady, and know from her that Mim Alger steadily refuses, to permit any of her friends to searct the suthorship.

We think that Mrs. Swissheim, if she investi-

We think that Mrs. Swisshelm, if she investi-We think that Mrs. Swissheim, if she investigates the matter with her usual clearness of vision and soundness of judgment, will find that she has unintentionally done Mrs. Allen a great wrong. In the first place, if Miss Alger could write "Rook Me to Sleep," why has she never written any other poems which will hear some comparison with it? Mrs. Allen has written many such. "Rock Me to Sleep" may be the most popular of her poems with the great public; but certainly with critics and with poets, it will not take the first place among her compositions. We think, for ourselves, that she has written several poems far superior to it in merit.

written several poems far superior to it in meit.
We think if Mrs. Seissheim will write to Dr.
Clarke, and get copies of the bills for printing on white satin the poem of "Rock Me to Sleep" on white satin the poem of " Hock Me to Sleep she will find that said printing was not done pr vious to the publication of the said poem in th SATURDAY EVENING POST. H. P.

COURAGE.

"Is courage befitting a woman?" was asked yesterday by a blue-eyed, fair-haired girl, who had, with others, been listening to some facts with regard to a lady who shall be nameless.

"Yes," we answer; "courage is as necessary to a woman as to a man. Why not?"

"It has ever seemed to me," she answered,
"that fortitude, rather than courage, should be-

True, fortitude enables us to endure, but we want courage to act. It is not for a woman to lead armics, although Joan of Are did it very worthily; not every woman that has the wish to be a Zenobia or a Cleopatra. But there is not a day of woman's life that she is not called upon to be courageous."

"It is the little foxes that spoil the vines"— upon to be courageoua."

"It is the little foxes that spoil the vines"—the little annoyances and petty stings from within and without. The sympathizing wife, the careful mother, the patient nurse, cannot well accomplish her task without courage. Courage to bridle her own spirit, and then to help others govern theirs. How many hours of despondency, sorrow, and dread, just because one had not the courage to speak in the right time and place. Sleepiess nights and careworn days invite despondency and fear. Courage is necessary to throw this saide, to rise above it; to look duty in the face, and to meet it cheerfully. Every one knows that it is far easier to meet a great evil, than it is to pass over a little, stinging annoyance—we are prepared for the first, but the last finds us off our guard.

If the mother needs courage, so does the sister—courage to ask her brother to put down the glass, to throw aside the cigir; courage to ask him to stay and make home pleasant to the little cost. Not only the wife, the mother, and the sister need courage; it is just as escential to the bells in seciety, the charming, faccinating weman; courage to frown down all that is low, has, ignoble: courage to give her smiles and her head to the worthiest, independent of the mere accidents of birth and fortune. How is allowed that is headening to them, to dress their hair with taste, and to wear a bonnet that is headening to them, to dress their hair with taste, and to wear their dresses of becoming length, neither looped up to show an elaborate chirt, or long enough to sweep the streets for the gautiemen, but of the exact length to be free from speck or hiemish. Women should be taught to be couragewest. There are few things that would tend to make them kappier in themselves, and meets acceptable to these with whom they associate than courage.

things whose panic terrors are a frequent beam of dissectors to themselves and those seems of dissectors to themselves and those seems them. Now, it is a great mistake to magine that has many go with courage, at that the blass of punthases and sympathy sent all be rubbed of by that viger of misd make arrange that disklimate a smoottlifty which may only concernable dispress and difficulties, for the few example being trademining there is a possible grow and dispress to a possible grow and dispress to the second of the second of dispress to the second of the second of dispress of the second of Margaret of Anjon, Mary Quasan of Second of Margaret of Anjon of Margaret of Anjon of Margaret of Anjon

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

"HEREWARD, THE LAST OF THE ESCLESS." By CHARLES KINGELY. Published by Ticknor & Fields, Boston. For sale by Ashmend & Evens, Philidds.
"Wissing his Way." By Charles Carrier Corris, Published by Ticknor & Fields. For sale by Ashmend & Evens.
"Livyles Form." By Mrs. H. B. Srows. Published by Ticknor & Fields. For sale by Ashmend & Evens.
"Livyles Form." By Mrs. H. B. Srows. Published by Ticknor & Fields. For sale by Ashmend & Evens.
"Paymor Boys And Painor Picyunas." By

in the selemn visits of by-gone years."

"Hold my head a minute," quoth my nephew John Witton.

In such a manner I made the acquaintance of the celebrated author of "Watery Waste," Besides "Watery Waste," she has written "The Withered Heart," "Hope's Thunder-Clouds," and "The Mourner's End, and Other Tales." After that speech about Junius Henri Brown, I read her novels. I find that a "desolating sircoso" has swept all the common sense out of them; also that the author of "Watery Waste" stands not alone in that respect. I find that the came desolating sircoso has swept a perfect shower of just such witten novels all over my beloved America. I wish it had kindly swept the writers thereof along, and gently set them down in the Great Sas in the middle of Africa. Them indeed Minnie Anabel could have written afout a Watery Waste from personal experience.

down in the Great San in the middle of Africa. Then indeed Minnie Anabel could have written about a Watery Weste from personal experiences.

For I have lest my temper with these weep-lag-willow nevel writers. Out upon the whole crew of them, I say! I have no pationee with their olitate of them, I say! I have no pationee with their olitate austimosphilian, their literary weigngraci and homogosky. One may busten being in the right mind telemine such stell as this:

"He lot the cloudy animater of his eyes full upon her as measured he.

What do you think of that for a very popular Azerican nevel?

BY COSMO. Or this:

Or this:

"The short, matted curis were pushed front his was brow by the panab-bleasam tangue of the mobile nanhous-selected dog."

Panch bleasam tengue of a manhous day!

There's a spaces of thesterie for you.

It's worthy at a pince in D'Israell's "Curicelities in Linguism." Give us the old Radellife yow beef and dulon horrors, or the Children of the Abber, where the "exquisite associability" of some blue-syed maiden melts into tears about every half yard or so, rather than these bine blasses of metapier.

come bias-syst maiden mests may seem be every half yard or so, rather than these blue blasss of messages.

To know "Watery Waste," is to know every wasping-willow novel in print. All have the same covered streets of a great city, alternating chapter for chapter with a humble cottage in the sountry, the same neble old mansion where the same old housekeeper looks after the bodily comforts of a sallow, saturaina, middle-aged master, whose youth is shrouded in some impensivable mystery, known only to this old housekeeper. There is the same agenty of scarlet mose bads stock into the same astenishing raven hair, the trailing myrtle vins, the fountain, the improbable garden, the high-mettled bays, or chestnuts, or grays, as the case may be, the same impossible journeys to Europe, and the deaf, old house-dog, who "utters a low whine" at the sound of his master's steps, a quarter of a mile off. In fact, if I may be permitted to say so, the whole nevel is messily "a low whine." All exactly allke—with the same writery moralising—and same feeble saronam—and puny wit. Not a line of good, vigorous, rugged English proce in them; in short, alsa, not always even good graumar.

The young miss at boarding-school, reads

The state of the s

A young lady who had been invited to two places of amusement for the same evening, was sitting in a country church, thinking over which invitation to accept and which to reject. Such and just come to a conclusion, and saw with her mind's eye the disappointed swain turn away, when the minister, who was discouraing to sinners, uttered these words: "If you do not hoospt the invitation, where will you go to?" "Where?" exclaimed the young lady, "why, I'll go to the standing, with Bill Smith."

Party.

In a country where republican principles and personal equality signifies little more than slavish submission to superior intellect, alreads all great and good examples, either in marsht, politica, art, science, or domestic economy, fall fruitless among the mass—exciting no envalative politics, art, science, or domestic economy, fall fraitless among the mass—exciting no escalative energy.

In thousands of instances throughout the Spanish American countries, we find this fact demonstrated; but I never e y it so patent anywhere else as in the case of the Besence Ayrean farmer-general, Urquina, the successor of Rosas as Governor-Gonard of the United Provinces of the Rio de la Finta, then a private citizen and progressive farmer, and again in public life—at the present time Commander-in-chief of the Buence Ayrean army, acting it concert with the forces of Brazil, against Paraguay. Urquina is neither a great statesman or military commander, but he is a truly great and good man. In our country his example would be worth nillions of money to the public, his influence felt from Canada to the Mexican Gulf—from the Atlantic to the shores of the Pacifia. In his own, his influence does not reach even his next doer neighbor—his example is worth nothing, because totally unheeded. It is a great life lost while living.

Two of our party knew the great Buenos Ayrean farmer personally and intimately—one of our number—Dector Bend—had twice visited the place, and being positively assured by both our fallow wanderers that our reception would be a welcome and most cordial one, and our numbers no manner of inconvenience, we went afteen isagues out of our way to pay our respects to Benor Urquina, and see a Buenos Ayrean farm.

Astonishment is but a half-meaning word to express our sentiments and emotions when we had passed the first day on the estate of our new plate glass, Venetian blinds, ornamental verandahs on a level with the first and second floors, running around three sides of the building, including two two-story wings, which contained the kitchen, bake, and wash-houses, and accommodations for domestics.

Within, the mansion was plastered, papered, carpeted—the apartments all arranged and furnished exactly as we should look for such things in any first-class residence in the United States. There was even a bath-room, and in all the principal rooms of the second floor a supply of pure, cool water. There were mahogany and rose-wood, and funcy japanned chamber sets of furniture, and sets in hair cloth and brootelle, and sideboards, centre-tables, tets-a tets, plate glass mirrors, side-tables in Lapis lazuli, ormolu and veined marble—all these latter of French fabric, but the furniture in chief, was of North American fashion and construction, all purchased in New York.

In the United States, England, or France, such a villa thus furnished would excite no comment, and it may seem that this South American home beyond the Rio de la Plata, is scarcely worth so much of description. But please imagine a three year's drift among adobe—always adobe—bare walls, unglazed windows, barn doors, great plank shutters, here floors, parlors a common highway for peens, negroes, dogs, horess—not a civilized convenience, every visitor supplying his, er her own bed—appointments unlike anything else en earth than—Spanish America or Brazil, and then by a single step, coming into such a seeme and surroundings. It is very likely you would grow eloquent in description.

The first positive injunction of Senor Urquiza and his family was, that we were to remain three months. Our limit was, three days—but during our first dinner, a compressive was effected, and we met at three weaks. Before three days had expired we all, I think, began to regret that we also were not Urquiza, that we might with propriety remain always. Donas Urbins and her daughters, took all our female campanierce, right hom of theirs, agricultural science, and progress, as sould but convince us that if the companies of the La Platan provinces would but take patters by, and follow the lead of, so able and energetic piencer as this scidiorizance wan, it would require no great hape of time to make Baence Ayres use of the scident and most productive farming countries in the world.

But when we rede out, as we frequently did, among the neighboring manpaniesce and farmers, some of whom were man of great would, and found no one among them all, following the noble lead of Urquins in a single particular, we argued that the period when Busses Ayrest would become a great and prospecus accurry by agriculture, was not very near at hand.

When we had been about ten days at the extencia, and Don Jose had been upon several occasions quite as much astenished by our feats with the American rifle and revolver, as we had been at fading biasses, and them, and been at fading biasses, and them, and been at fading biasses, and the control to flavour the control of the stands, on the great thoroughfare to Balta, there was a defile that for four years had been the haust of a hand of despense outlaws, having for their chief the notorious Bodrigues Consamira, the terror of a wide unage of herritory. It had got to such a condition, that not a party, carvan, or lone traveller, could pass the defile without being robbed, provided they carried valuables worth the taking.

The robbors were in sufficient force to overpower all ordinary opposition, while they always evaded all formidable, armied escoria. They were practiced in all manner of tricks and strategies, but Don Jose guessed something shrewdly, that if our party, monnted and equipped as we always rode, like quiet, peaceful, well-to-do-travellers, were to ride into the defile, the brigands might very likely make a mistake in an attempt to plunder us.

We guessed so too, and were eager to make the experiment at once. Edith Bond, hearing the decision, went up directly and got her siz-shooters, which she set a shooters, which she set about putting in proper order.

"Why, what are you going to do, Miss Edith?" Cator inquired.

"To shoot brigands, of course, if they will only afford me the opportunity."

Three or four of us put in a protest against any of the women joining in the hunt. Edith pouted, and said positively,

"I am going!"

"And so am I!" said Mrs. O'Harra, going off after her arms.

"And so am I !" said Mrs. O'Harra, going off after her arms.

"And so am I !" put in Denna Minnie, following the little Irish rebel.

"Ye vis tampooo!" declared our Brazilian Diana, Senora Monteiro.

There was no combatting successfully such a whirlwind of woman's will, and so we said,

"Well, come along, all of you if you will, and get shot. There will be so much trouble off our hands."

Doona Urbina and her daughters, seeing our get shot. There will be so much trouble off our handa."

Doons Urbina and her danghters, seeing our Tartars so enthusiastic and resolute, put on enthusiastic also, and determined to accompany us, and there was immediate hurry and buesle, and preparation, and in an hour we were all in the saddle and on the march, followed by nearly a hundred of Don Jose's dependents, of all arms, led by the patron of the estate. This force was to keep a mile or so in the rear, remain so until we were within a league of the defile, when they were to separate, and serve as finnking parties on both aides of the road above the savine.

We entered the defile about three o'clock, P. M., riding carelessly, like unsuspecting travellers, three and four abreast, and had proceeded perhaps half a mile, when et a point where the road made an abrupt curve, and the brush-wood on either hand came close down to the beaten track, there came suddenly the

to the beaten track, there came suddenly the

"Halt!"
Out, into the road, almost under our horses' heads, leaped a dozen fierce, murderous-looking vagabonds—and perched on a rock, twenty yards up the hill-side on our right, in full view, stood the robber-chief himself—the redoubtable Don Rodriguez Cassamira, for whose head there was a standing reward of a thousand passes.

Cator and O'Harra were riding in front, and Mrs. Kate O'Harra was riding to the right of her husband. At that sharp word Hall / Mrs. O'Harra's trained horse swung like a pivet on his hind feet, bringing his rider's left side to the mark—the sharp crack of Kate O'Harra's rife was the instantaneous response to that word of command, and down from his perch plusged the outlaw chief, with a bullet passed through his heart.

outlaw chief, with a bullet passed through his heart.

The revolvers of Cator and O'Harra brought down four of the ruffians in the road, the survivors plunging headlong into the thicket. Directly the rattling voilies of our two flanking parties drove the surprised miscreants from cover, and we brought them down with rifle and revolver shots, until of the more than fifty who comprised the band, more than half were slain. The survivors surrendered, and, being tied together in couples, were driven by Urquina's men into Salta, where in the course of a week they were disposed of in the same manner that we had rid the community of their comrades there in the defite.

Edith Bond was actually jealous of Mrs. Kate O'Harra, and pouted a listle for a week, being uncertain whether she had winged her man in the skirmish or not.

EW The following is a verbatim at literative report of the evidence given in a magistrates' court by a negro man named Doctor Jones, who accused another negro man named Washington of stealing his watch:

"I'se name Doctor Jones—name so 'cause old master named Doctor. I was settin' in de shop; my watch hanging on de wall. Dat niggar (pointing to Washington) come in, sot down, got up, went out, and de watch was dismissed. Dat's all I know about."—Alexandris Gastia.

Crasella.

237 There is a coat in Staunton, Virginia, which was worn for the first time many years ago by a certain man on his wedding-day. The garment has since been worn by his eight some and seven grandsoms on the coorsion of their marriages. The youngest grandsom lately sold it for $10.

Leider Prim. Hanging in.

And on many and priming of the company o

in life,—a little conveyors, previousno, a little that conveyors, previousno, a little that conveyors, previousno, and the state of loving lips, to opting up into the origings at the tone of a genial hand, or a genial hand, or a genial hand, or a genial hand, and the rivers, it was no pleasant and laid to us.

Tinkin, tinkin, sweetly it sung to us, Light was our talks as of ferry belis, Ferry wedding belia faintly rung to us, Light was our talks as of ferry belis, And people stay at home, and lose all these beauties of earth, rives, and sky,—of montain, vais, and moor, shutting themselves up, and with the travel, because—because they are strainty vaised to the vaise, dripping preprinting the the vaise, and the theory of the thirty one of the strainty because the strainty of the travel, because—because they are strainty vaised to the vaise, dripping preprinting the strainty because the strainty vaise, and moor, shutting themselves up, and with the travel, because—because they are strainty vaised to the vaise, dripping preprinting vaises and the thirty of the strainty when the the vaise of the vaise of the vaise of the vaise, and the vaise of the vaise, and the vaise of t an' come an' tell me jest as quick as ever you can fly!

Oh, deary, deary me! Ef it aint Sampson! I declare I wish 't was 'Bijah Lawson! I vum I'd marry him right on the spot, an' sx no questions. But I've been an' answered 'Bijah's letter, an' told 'im' 't I couldn't have him, 'cause I was engaged tew another man, an' now thet one haint come—leastways, I'm afeard he haint, an' there aint no more hopes o' 'Bijah nohow.

There comes Malerky drivin' up the stairs two tew a time. What is It? and is it? has he come, Malerky?

What? Sampson has sent me a note by a man you didn't know? Bent a note! Then he never—oh, goodness alive! he never meant ter come! Where's the man't brung the note? I wanter see him. Gone? "Went right straight off?" Oh, land! Wall, what's in the note? Read it tew me, Malerky, fur I'm so flustered I Read it tew me, Malerky, for I'm so flustered ! can't begin to read it myself.

(Malachi reads aloud.)

Gadall, Sunday Night.

Gadall, Bunday Night.

My Deer Mrs. Scranton: I trust you will excuse me from officiating to-night as 'per agreement, when you hear that I was married in Gadall church this afternoon, to our respected son-in-law's mother, Mrs. Mehitable Cole.
It is due to that lady and her family to say that they had no part in my plan to pay off old soores and be quits with you. I proposed to the ryesterday, and we were married to-day. I told her it was "now or never," and she, like a sensible woman as she is, preferred the
"now."
I wish you much joy of your wedding-eaks, your fine clothes, and your showy company.
Tours, &c., Sampson Whitple, Eq.

The Chinese gourmands have, it is recorded, a method of eaching turdies that even a Landon aldorman would esteem rare. A turtle is put into water at first only moderately wares, and covered over with a lid just sufficient to admit the animal all but the head and neek. Within reach of his mouth is placed a hew! Allod with the animal all but the heed and neek. Within reach of his mouth is placed a how filled with highly spiced wine. As the water becomes warmer, the turtle gots thirsty, and is then induced to drink the apiced wine, and with more and more segorness, until he becomes so completely saturated with it that when eached every part of his body is improgranted with a delicious flavor of wine and optons that is highly poined. We outside barbariene put in the spice afterwards, and make up in quantity what we seem to look in quality. At the last Lord Mayor's dinner, in London, given by Hayor Phillips, more than one hundred galence of real turtle soup are said to have been consumed in a disher partaken of by more than a thousand guests.

I'm all ready an' dreamed? How done my dress become me? What dow you think o' my hale? Book makes a fast-sate waitin' mild, don't she? Book makes a fast-sate waitin' mild, don't she?

"What time did Sempson say 't, he'd be here?" Why he said we was ter he married percisely at seven, as' he' come time amonghise rest him an' change his close after the corresponding to the rest him an' change his close after the corresponding to the rest him an' change his close after the corresponding to the rest him an' change his close after the corresponding to the rest him an' change his close after the corresponding to the rest him an' change his close after the corresponding to the rest him an' change his close after the corresponding to the rest him an' change his close after the corresponding to the rest him an' change his close after the corresponding to the broad daylight at seven which an afternoon are light straight up here tev once.

Eight minutes o' seven? Malerky is Malerky is a more korridges comin', an' son if dee down the read the sea of his a comin'? Mebby somethin' awful has happened ter Sampson! E' ther has, an' he don't never git here, what shall I ever dew "Tain't o' no use ter send a man!" It's see of he's a comin'? Mebby somethin' awful has happened ter Sampson! E' ther has, an' he don't never git here, what shall I ever dew "Tain't o' no use ter send a man!" It's see of he's a comin'? Mebby somethin' awful has happened ter Sampson! E' ther has, an' he don't never git here, what shall I ever dew "Tain't o' no use ter send a man!" It's see of he's a comin'? Mebby somethin' awful has happened ter Sampson! E' ther has, an' he don't never git here, what shall I ever dew "Tain't o' no use ter send a man!" It's see of he's a comin'? Mebby somethin' awful has happened ter Sampson! Malerky, yeu don't b'lieve he's did it a purpose? Yeu don't think he newer meant ter come at all? Oh, my! I don't b'lieve but what he did. It's a piot ter be revenged on me, 'cause I disa'pinted him moo'l Oh, what shall I dew! what sha

Design or chance make others wive, But Nature did this match contrive; Eve might as well have Adam fied, As she desired her little bed To him, for whom Heaven seemed to fusa And measure out this little dame!

To him the fairest nymphs do chow,
Like moving meantains topp'd with mow;
Aud ev'ry man a Polyphene
Does to his Galates seem !

Does to his Galates seem !

The little people had a remarkably happy life of it—if not absolutely "healthy and wealthy and wise," at least something like it. They had sine children, five of whom lived to be men and women, of the ordinary height. Richard, born during the reign of James the First, saw the glories and the troubles of Charles the First, Cromwell, Charles the Second, and James the Second, and James the Second, and died early in the reign of William and Mary. Rather late in life he became drawing-master to the Princesses Mary and Anna, afterwards queens. He died at the age of seventy-five, while his pocket-edition of a wife serviced to eighty-nine. They were each under four feet in height; it is even said that they could only muster seven feet of stature between them.

a good gal, make some plauserable excuse, 'cause I'm sure Sampsom'il some lyt, on'y somethila' has happened that nobody couldn't help—some dretful accurdunt or 'nother ter hender 'im an' make 'im lata. He'll sartingly arrive sune!

What say, Malerky? "You'll oow-hide 'im within an inch o' his life of he's ben an' made sich tarnal fools on us all o' purpose?" Walt, I hope of you undertake it, you'll be able to carry it out, but I'm desperity affeared you won't, 'eause Sampson is a dretful strong man for one o' his size—and he aint a small man syther—everybody says he is the strongest man there is anywheres about these parts. You'd better sue 'im, Malerky, anough sight. I declare of he doos fool me so when I've ben an' got all ready tow sich expense, an' made all this fuse about these marked the direction of the doos fool me so when I've ben an' got all ready tow sich expense, an' made all this fuse about these marked the direction of the doos fool me so when I've ben an' got all ready tow sich expense, an' made all this fuse about the meteors and the point from which they come across our orbit.

"Ir was ever my invariable custom in my youth," says a cels@rated Persian writer, "to rise from my sleep to watch, pray, and read the Koran. One night, as I was thus engaged, my father, a man of practised virtue, awoka. Behold, said I to him, 'thy other children are lost in irreligious slumber, while I alone am awake to praise Ged.' 'Son of my soul,' said he, 'it is better to alone the to wake to remark. be, 'it is better to sleep than to wake to the faults of thy brethren.' "

WE know a clerk in a government department (he objects to the common phrase, public office) who is so precise, so married to routine, that he dockets all his love letters, and minutes his answers on the back, ties them up neatly with red always writes to the lady on "half margin," and never visits her without first making an appointment. All the correspondence goes by the meaenger.

CURE FOR CORNS—Place the feet for half an hour, two or three nights successively, in a pretty strong solution of common soda. The alkali dissolves the indurated cuticle, and he corns fall out spontaneously, leaving a cavity which soon fills.

Holloway's Pills — Determination of Bleed to the Head.—Impredence or neglect of health is tantamount to constructive suicide—the penaisy, a short, quick straggle and instantaneous death. All whe are of full havi or subject to apoplectic or epileptic standard every be without a supply of these lavaluable medicines as they will find a safeguard in becasional does of them. In every instance trey have been attended with the most successful results.

Beld by all Druggists

11

NORTH-RAST.

THE POR THE SATURDAY BYSHIPS FORE, BY MRS. A. D. T. WHITNEY, 100 OF "FAITH GARTNEY'S GIRLEOOD."

We had a week of rainy days, The heaven was gray—the earth was grim; and through a sea of hopeless hase The dramy daylight wandered dim.

The antidened trees, with weary beng Drouped heavily, or callen awayed flow answer to the sobe and accepts The jaded-east wind whimpering m

Talat as the dawn the mosnday gleamed, With hardly more of silr or sound; the only noise or metion seemed. That dull, cold dropping on the ground

Vainly the soul her frame ignores;
Deep answereth unto deep apart;
And the great weeping out of doors
Touched the tear fountains in the heart.

So life leoked drear, and heaven was dim; And though the our still strede the sky, Through the thick gloom that shrouded him Source trusted we the Hope on high.

But sudden from the leafy dark,— The cloce, green covert, rain-bet Out-bursting treesulously,—hark! The carel of a little bird!

Ah, long the storm,—yet none the less, Beneath the cloud of passing ill, Hid in the heart's deep wilderness, A waiting joy is nestling still!

ETHEL'S SECRET.

WRITTEN POR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST, BY BERTHA BARTON.

CHAPTER III.

CHAPTER III.

Mid-summer was brooding over London, and all the slite of the city were leaving for Bath, Torquay and other places of resort. Ethel Thornton entertained a decided antipathy to fashionable watering places. She longed for entire freedom and relaxation from restriction. Mr. Thornton wished to revisit The Waste, and Ethel's proposition to some of her intimate friends to accompany herself and father to Aiton was received with pleasure by many who axcoodingly enjoyed the novelty of the idea.

The Alton House was cool and commodious; there were ample facilities for bathing and boating, and the rocks might become the scene of romantic explorations and rambies.

A week later the London party went down to The Waste. Little did Ethel imagine that during her sojourn there she would experience the most bitter trial of her life.

The party was composed of Mr. Thornton and Ethel, Mrs. Lacy's brother, gay, handsome Harry Ashton, Oleott Cameron, and Hastings Cleaveland.

"Whe seconds my proposition to a stroll on the beach?" said Harry Ashton to the group assembled on the planza one lovely moonlight night a few days after their arrival.

There was a unanimous assent, Certainly the evening was far too beautiful to spend indoors. The glancing waves reflected the pale moon and the twinking stars, and the breeze was laden with the fresh pure perfume of the ses.

Young Ashton grew alightly cross when he discovered that Olcott Cameron had taken his place by Myra Etlis, and was assisting her to arvange the crimeon talma around her graceful shoulders. He had anticipated being her eccort in the promenade, and now when he glanced at Myra to discover if the disappointment was mutual, he beheld her beytowing upon Cameron one of her sweetest smiles, apparently oblivious of his presence.

Affecting a degree of nonchalance he did not feel. Harry Ashton joined Lens Dalmar, who of his presence.

Affecting a degree of nonchalance he did not feel, Harry Ashton joined Lena Dalmar, who had beheld this little by-play, and now asked Harry if "he and Myra were weary of playing leaves"

The above-mentioned gentleman arowed, with rvery appearance of truth, that he was "heart-whole and fancy-free."

Lessing upon Hestings Cleaveland's arm, Ethel walked slowly up and down the sands. Of late she had seemed to lead a charmed life, surrounded by every luxury that wealth could supply, every pleasure that love could devise. The pre-sent little fitted her for the future."

As the two passed onward, under the over-hanging cliffs, Ethel started and uttered a sud-den exclamation.

"Look, Hastings," she said quickly, "who is that person ?"

that person ?"
"Where?" replied Mr. Cleaveland, "I see no

"Where?" replied Mr. Cleaveland, "I see no one."

"He has disappeared now," said Ethel in a low tone. "There was the figure of a man standing in the shadow of the rook. He seemed to be observing us very attentively."

"Doubtless it was some young fisherman who is liste in returning homeward," laughed Hastings. "You are growing fanofful, Ethel."

Ethel was not entirely reassured. She let the subject drop, however, but the incident hamned her still.

The following morning Mr. Thornton prepased to the gentlemen that they should go down into ——shire for a few days' shooting. Mr. Cleaveland was the only one who assented to the project, the rest avowing that they were destitute of sparting propensities.

The evening proved chilly and cloudy, and the Alton party assembled in the drawing-room. Mrs. Lacy set on a distant sofs, conversing with Mr. Harcourt, (a friend of Mr. Thornton's, who had arrived only an hour or two before,) assembled with Harry Ashton's reparator; while Myns Ellis set on a hasook with her guiter before her; but her white fingers scarce awake an echo from the strings. Her red lips were a decided pout, and the direction of Lenn and Mr. Ashton.

All this was excessingly finitering to Harry's vanity; and arriving at the consission that his attentions to his companion, were not lesseling to the asprisions Estie beauty opposite, he redecided, and mather word no, one lie for him. Ethel mit by the open window with Mr. Ca-mocon; the laster was agreeable and entertaining, but Eshal was unusually distrait, and felt in no mood for conversation. A shador hung over her spirits that she could not shake off; the vision of the figure she had seen (which seemed strangely familiar) on the rook, gasing so fixedly upon her, would rise up belove her. After schile, Harry Ashten went to Myra's side for the octensible purpote of acking her to sing, but in reality to make his peace with her. Comeron sauntered over to Lena Dalmar, and Ethel was left alone. Absorbed in thought, she sai motionless, looking out on the night. Buddenly her attention was attracted by the small figure of a boy, creeping along under the hedge, in the direction of the house, glancing around the while, as if wishing to occape observation. When he recobed within a few feet of the window where Ethel eat, he passed, and keenly surveyed her countenance, which was plainly visible by the light within the drawing-room. An irresistible impulse prompted Ethel to remain silent. At length, as if estisfied with his scrutiny, the boy held up to view a letter, making a warning sign as he did so. What was this mystery? Ethel intuitively divined that some great issue depended upon her-exercising belf-control.

Carelessly dropping her arm without the window, she received the missive, and crushed it in her hand. How to escape from the apartment, so as to peruse it, was now her thought. The assembled guests were apparently engressed in each other, and Ethel arous, thinking to leave the room unobserved. As she reached the floor, Cameron stopped forward to open it, and she met his eyes, which clearly revealed that he was occacious soone mystery was on hand. In her confusion, Ethel dropped the letter. Olooti Cameron stopped forward to open it, and she met his eyes, which clearly revealed that he was occacious soone mystery was on hand. In her confusion, Ethel dropped the letter. Olooti Cameron stopped, and picking it up restored it to lier. As he did so, Ethel obtained a glimpeo of the writing, passed out.

Alone within her own room, Ethel closed and locked the door to secure herself from interruption, and sinking into a scat, covered her face with her hand, moaning out:

"Earle, oh I Earle!" then she opened the letter and differences the secure of the secur

"Earle, oh! Earle!" then she opened the letter and read its contents.

"Have you thought of me as dead, little sister? Perhaps it would be better if I were. I must see you, and then I will tell you all. Meet me to-night, at 11 o'clock, at the familiar rock, where we have so often sat when I was—but enough of this. Do not fail me. E."

Ethel Thornton felt like one struck by a mortal blew. She knew that she had now no time for thought. Action was required. Mechanically smoothing her heir, se if nothing had happened, she drenched her dainty lace handkerthis with esu-de-cologue, pressed it to her throbbing temples, and descended to the drawing-room.

case with eas-de-cotogue, presend it to her throbbing temples, and descended to the drawing-room.

It is truly said that a smile may hide an sohing heart. Ethel laughed and talked throughout the evening; her cheeks were flushed, and eyes bright with unnatural excitement. She felt that the secret weighing upon her heart must be preserved, cost her what it might.

At length the party broke up. When Ethel gained her apartment, upon consulting her watch, she found that it was already eleven. She waited until the whole house was quiet, and then throwing around her a large cloak, which enveloped both head and figure, she crept cautiously down the stairs, and went out into the night. She shivered as she hurried-onward through the darkness, but not from fear. That was not an element of her nature. It was the dread and terrible uncertainty. As she neared the rook, she beheld a tall, dark figure standing beside it; in another moment she had met her brother.

"Earla" she said after awhile "you promised."

the rook, she beheld a tall, dark figure standing beside it; in another moment she had met her brother.

"Earle," she said after awhile, "you promised to let me know all, but what is this all! Oh, Earle, we have mourned you as dead. Why have you so long concealed the fact of your existence from us? What is this siystery? Tell me of privation, toll, hardship, anything but that diagrace is attached to your name."

"Ethel, it is of diagrace of which I have to speak to you," replied Earle Thornton. "I am not worthy to be your brother. I do not merit your lova. Only Heaven knows what it costs me to tell you this; to look upon you and feel what a great guif lies between us. Ethel, I am an outlaw; a ban sets me apart from homorable men. I am a smuggler, liable at any time to be hunted down and committed to justice. I feel that I can trust you with my accret..."

"Tell me all that has transpired since you left The Waste." witnessed Ethel in Caltering.

left The Waste," whispered Ethel, in faltering tones.

"You remember the night of my altercation with our father, when he decided that I should remain here," replied Earla. "I them grew deeperate, and my resolve was taken. From an old fisherman (who, I learn, is since dead,) I discovered that the tale of smugglers infesting The Waste was not a myth. He was an ally, and on the night to which I have referred, he apprised me that the smugglers were coming The Waste was not a myth. He was an ally, and en the night to which I have referred, he apprised me that the smugglers were coming ashore, and spoke in glowing colors of the exciting, adventurous life which they led. Excitement was what I craved. That night I met them, gave my word, and became one of their band. The next morning we were miles away from the place I so thoroughly detested. For awhile I liked the life, but gradually wearied of it, and in wardly despised myself for departing from the path of honor and rectitude. But the past could not be retrieved, and I grew hardened and callous. Bince then I have frequented various parts of the English coast, but this is my first visit to The Waste for four long years. Our vessel purports to be a collier; it came in here two nights age, and I, finding out that you were at Alten, could not resist the temptation of seeing and speaking to you once more. I decided to remain here until the vessel returned, which will be to-morrow, (we do not fear detection, as the vessel is unsuspected;) It will lie off the coast during the day, at night deposit its goods, and leave the following morning. Last evening I was standing hore, and saw you pass by, but dared make no sign, as a gentleman accompanied you. I then wrote the note, which you received, and despatched it by a trusty messenger. Oh, Ethel, little sister, the only being in the whole wide world that I have ever loved, or who has levred me! seeing you again has awakened aspirations after a better life, which I thought were forever buried. But why think of this ? I have chosen my lot, and it is new too last to retract I''

"No, dear Earle, it is not too late," replied think of this? I have constantly to now too late to retract!"
"No, dear Earle, it is not too late," replied Ethel, firmly, "you will give up this life that you have been leading; it will not be asis for you to remain in England at present, but there are other lands where a field of negfulness may be open to

you. Oh, Rasia, give me year amousts that you will accords to they request? We will use every exaction to obtain a parden for you at court, and then you can return to m."

She along to his arm as she spoke, her face lifted to his, and its pallor rendered move otriking by conteast with the dark, eager eyes.

"Fremise me, Earle! promise me new!"

"I give you my coleans promise, Ethel," said Earle, "I will renounce this lawless band. De not doubt me. Though I once broke faith with you, you can treat me now. It will be necessary for me to leave here in my old craft, but when she reaches a convenient port I will give up, and go far hway from my native laid."

"I know that you will keep your promise," said Ethel, in a thankful tone; "you have relieved my mind of a great weight."

"And my father, Ethel?"

"He is at present down in — shire. Oh, Earle, we deemed papa harsh and unloving, but we did not know him. He has deeply mourned for you. When he learns what you have unfolded to me, he will forgive you asid forget the past. I must now leave you, Earle," she continued. "To-merrow night, at the same hour, I will meet you here."

Kiesing him good-bys, she left the rock, and in a few moments reached Alton.

Once mere in her room, she breathed a sigh of deep relief, and throwing aside her clock, bound up the heavy coil of black hair which had fallen over her shoulders.

"I must destroy Earle's letter," she collicquised, "it may be productive of harm.

As she spoke, she put her hand in her dress pookst, where she had placed the missive after its perusal, but it was not there.

"I must have dropped it on my way to or from the rock to-night," she said. "If any one should discover it what should I do! It is folly to think of restracing my steps; in the darkness the letter could not be perceived. I will arise with the dawn and search for it before any one is stirring. How glad I am that papa and Hastings are not here. Their presence could effect no good; and I fear that I might fail keep to my secret from those who so love me,

It was late when Ethel sank to sleep, and when she awake she found the bright sun shinning in the apartment.

All that had transpired the evening before rushed upon her mind. She felt dizzy and confused; it was late, she must hasten to seek for the lost letter. Hastily donning her walking-dress, Ethel sat forth. She had proceeded only a short distance when she met Olcott Cameron coming from the direction of the rocks.

"My letter has fallen into his hands perhaps," she thought; "though I knew not why, I mistrust him; I believe he has his suspicione even now."

trust him; I believe he has his suspicions even now."

"You are as great a pedestrian as I," said Mr. Cameron to her, "I have just returned from your favorite rock. The sunrise view from that point is superb."

"Yes," replied Ethel, "the scenery here is exceedingly picturesque."

"You are looking pale, Miss Thornton. Sitting up so late can scarcely be conducive to good health."

He snoke with emphasia saving steadily at ting up so late can scarcely be conducive to good health."

He spoke with emphasis, gazing steadily at her the while. In vain Ethel endeavored to appear composed. Was Cameron's last remark a random shot; or could he be cognizant of her mid-night walk?

"I seldom have a bright coler," she replied, proudly. "I will not detain you longer—goodmorning."

Ethel passed on, searching every inch of ground, but the missing letter was not found.

"Doubtless my fears are groundless," she thought, as she retraced her steps. "It may have been blown in some fissure in the rock, or out into the sea."

During the morning, Hastings Cleaveland unexpectedly returned to The Waste. Mr. Thornton had fallen in with some old friends, who had carried him off for a week's visit; Hastings had also been invited to join them, but he preferred returning to Alton. At the dinner hour Ethel was doomed to undergo a keen trial.

Mr. Cleaveland had been giving a description of the shooting expedition. When he concluded Olcott Cameron changed the subject.

"By the way, Cleaveland, have you noted the vessel that has just come into the harbor?"

"Yes; it is a collier, I believe."

"By the way, Cleaveland, have you noted the vessel that has just come into the harbor?"
"Yes; it is a collier, I believe."
"That is what it purports to be, but I strongly suspect that it is a smuggler's craft."
Ethel had just replied to a remark made by Harry Ashton, and she only caught the latter part of Cameron's sentence. That was enough to cause her heart to sink with dread. She lifted a glass of water to her lips, to hide her emotion, but her hand trembled so violently that she spilt half of its contents upon the table. Fortunately her aritation was upperceived, or at tunately her agitation was unperceived, or at least not commented upon.

tonately her agitation was unperceived, or at least not commented upon.

"You generally view a subject in a clear light, Miss Thornton," said Cameron, turning to Ethel, "what is your opinion in regard to the vessel in "what is your opinion in regard to the vessel in question?"

There was a slight sneer perceptible in his tones that aroused Ethel's latent pride.

"I should think that you gentlemen were capable of arriving at a correlt conclusion upon that point," she replied, carelessly.

"Surely you are mistaken, Cameron. The Coast Guard is held in too much awe to admit of such lawless transactions. Would the smugglers possess the temerity to anchor here in the day light?" said Mr. Cleaveland.

"A guard stationed some ten miles distant, and which is not over vigilant, can scarcely be considered formidable," was Cameron's reply, "They are a hold set, and doubtless it is their intention to complete their work to night, and to-morrow at dawn set sail."

"In Mr. Thornton's absence it devolves upon us to apprise the Coast Guard of our empicions," broke in Harry Ashton in an energetic tone, "Such proceedings are utterly unbearable. The perpetraters should be punished with the utmost rigor."

"If we immediately despetch a measurer perpetrators should be punished with the utmost rigor."

"If we immediately despatch a messenger desiring the guards' presence, they can reach sere by night-fall," continued Cameron in his cool, assured tone; "when the snugglers come ashers to deposit their goods they can be easily captured."

Ethel could bear no more, and gave the signal to leave the table. As sine passed Ojcott Os-meron, who was steading by Mr. Cleaveland, he arrested her by a remark,

"I was so fortunate as to discover a letter in my morning ramble," he said. "It is your property, Miss Thornton; pardon my reminment in retaining it so long."

Mr. Cameron had intentionally emitted returning the missive until now. Like a skillful general who keeps heak his reserve, and only hrings them upon the field when the most declaive blow is to be strack, he had waited to speed his arrow when he knew that it would be the most keenly feit—in Hastings Cleavaland's processor.

Ethel extended her hand to receive the letter, then a mist biinded her eyes, and she would have fallen had she not leant against the back of a chair for support.

a chair for support.

By a strong effort she recovered her compo-sure and left the apartment, carrying with her Cleaveland's look of represental surprise and in-

Cleaveland's look of repreachful surprise and inquiry.

The gentlemen resumed their seats and lingured over their wins. Mr. Cleaveland did not join in the laugh or wittioism which sparkled around the table, even more brightly than the flowing juice of the vina. His brow was clouded and anxious, and his thoughts were dwalling on Ethel. Why should the restoration of a lest letter cause his young fiancé such evident agitation? Who could the missive be from, and what its contents? It was an enigma! Cameron perceived that his blow had struck home, and he awaited the issue.

Olcott Cameron was not one to inflict a willful injury upon the waman who had once touched injury upon the was not one to indict a walled injury upon the wasman who had once touched his fancy; but his nature was not magnanimous. The wound to his pride, made by Ethel's rejection, was still sore, and now that an opportunity presented to humble her pride, he was not slow to avail bimself of it.

presented to humble Aer pride, he was not alow to avail himself of it.

From some communicative fisherman he had learned of Earle Thornton's disappearance years before; from Earle's letter to Ethel, which he had found, and no nice sense of honor forbade his perusing, he discovered that Earle was connected with the smuggler's gang. Now it was in his power (by committing an act of justice to the community at large,) to be revenged for the past. Few men are actuated by such a petty motive, but some are, and Cameron was one of these. He restored the letter to Ethel in Hastings's presence with the view of exciting in his mind doubts of the constancy of his betrothed, imagining that even should Earle escape, Ethel's proud spirit would not allow her to reveal her secret to him, and should her brother be taken, Cleaveland would not seek to make his wife the sister of an optlaw a thus, in either case, a breach sister of an outlaw; thus, in either case, a breach would be formed between the two, which was would be formed between the two, which was what he most desired.

Thus with consummate tact he had laid his plans; not that he expected to be a gainer, but where he had played and lost, he could not tolerate the thought of another winning.

But he was mistaken in his estimate of Ethel Theraton's character. She was proud, but her pride could bend to force of circumstances. Even now she was slowly pacing the long back plazza, revolving in her mind what course it was best to pursue.

revolving in her mind what course it was best to pursue.

Her brother was in imminent danger. She must save him—but how.

She shrank from the thought of imparting her secret to Hastings at present, simply because she did not wish to place him in the position of one who would screen an outlike from justice; and independent of that, it was now too late for the threatened evil to be averted through his (Hastings's) instrumentality, as steps had already been taken for the apprehension of the smugglers. She felt that she must act alone.

A few moments later, Hastings C-caveland joined her.

joined her.

"Ethel," he said as he drew her srm through his, "do you not remember that we at one time agreed that there should ever be perfect confidence between us?"

"Yes," was the low reply.

"Then you will not refuse to let me know from whom you received that mysterious letter?"

For a moment Ethel was silent; when she spoke her volce was very calm and firm.

"I cannot tell you."
"Ethel, have I not a right to know? I cannot hope to retain your love if you do not deem me worthy of your confidence. Oh! my darling are you about to make shipwreck of my happiness?"

His earnest tenderness shook her fortitude:

Alls earnest tenderness shook her fortitude; she felt that she would die if she did not beg him to love and trust her still and to wait.

"Hastings, bear with me a little while," she said brokenly. "Some time I will you all; do not lose your faith in me."

Now Hastings Cleaveland's character shone forth in its full hearts.

forth in its full beauty. "I cannot doubt your look and tone, Ethel. I believe that you are perfectly true; I do trust

Even in the midst of her great trouble, Ethel Thornton's heart thrilled at the words " I do trust you," and she felt that such love would nover fall her.

do trust you," and she felt that such love would nover fall her.

Twilight shadows gathered over sea and land. Lights had not yet been ordered in the Alton drawing-room, and Ethel sat with her head bent upon her hand, thinking deeply upon the one subject. She must warn Earle of his danger; she had promised to meet him at the rock at eleven that night. Then it might be too late; she must be there earlier, trusting to Providence to find Earle at the place of rendex-vous before the appointed time. But could she leave her guests upon such an errand without her absence being detected?

Somes of her childhood came up before her, when Earle was her hero, her ideal of everything that was noble and good. She dwelt upon his unselfah devotion to her, and his free, high spirit exhibited in all of his actions. Must that brother be doomed to a felon's cell, or condemned to lead the life a convict, the disgrace and hopelessness of his hot crushing the germ of good intentions now implanted in his heart? Offecces such as his had been pardoned through the influence of persons high in favor at œurt; but there was the doubt of obtaining a pardon for Earle. How would her father bear the blow? Ethel was aroused from her reverse by Harry Ashton's entrance.

"The messenger has returned from the sta-the blow? Ethel was aroused from her reverie by Harry Ashton's entrance.

"The messenger has returned from the sta-tion," he said, to Mr. Cameron. He states that the Guard has gone further up the coast, but that a dispatch was sent them, and they will ar-rive here about twelve to-night. I suppose that will be ample time to carry our project into ex-cention!"

will be ample time to carry our project into excontion?"

Ethel's heart thrilled with thankfulness;
another hour, at least, was vouchasfed her;
much might be affected in that time.

"I imagine that those fellows will be found a pretty desperate set," continued Harry. "The Coast Guard does not number more than a half desses uses. I move that we juin in this moeturnal expedition, and also enliet some of the fishermen (who do not favor the emuggious) in the cames; in numbers there is safety.*

The proposition was accorded to, and shortly after the gentlemen departed, declaring in lengthing tones, that they would not return until they had immortalized themselves.

Bithel felt that the must avail herself of the opportunity new personned, and arose from her opportunity new personned, and arose from her cent.

"I have a severe headache," she said to her friends, and she speke truly. "Mrs. Lacy will ye wen the part of heeses. I will go to my row. A if you will excuse my shaence?" Her gueste expressed their regret; and Ethel hidding them good-night, left the drawing-room.

In case that some one should come to her room, and her absence he detected, she holised her door; and them with nervous heate demand the cloak which she had worn the night heden, and left the spartment by a side door, communicating with the back stairway, which she also looked after her. She left the house unpecceived, and quickly reached the rock. Earle was already there.

"Oh! Earle, what I have this day endured for your sake, you will never know. Danger is larking near. It has been discovered that your vessel is a smuggler's craft; and a plan has been made to capture the men to-night. They must not venture on shore. You will return to the vessel, and set sail as soon as possible. You will not forget your solemn promise to me?"

"No, Ethel, my brave, true-hearted sister—never."

"In after years we may most again; but if that blessing is denied us on earth, oh! Earle, you know that there is a Heaven where the several here are reunited. God is very merciful."

She kissed him twice, and clung lingeringly to his parting hand.

She kissed him twice, and clung lingeringly to you know that there is a Heaven where ties severed here are reunited. God is very merciful."

She kissed him twice, and clung lingeringly to his parting hand.

"Farewell, Earle; lose no time to insure your safety. Farewell."

And then she left him—little knowing that never more on earth would she behold the living face of Earle Thornton.

"Thank Heaven it is over," she said, when she regained her apartment. "Soon I will be relieved of my secret. Oh! Hastings, there shall be no more mystery between us. May I swerp prove worthy of your love and trust."

After Ethel's departure, Earle stood for a few moments motionless upon the rock. Though but a boy in years, he was aged in heart; mental disquiestede had robbed him of his youth. The waves bent around him, the wind mouned above his head, but he heeded them not.

As the shipwreeked mariner beholds a sell coming towards his lonely isle—as the fainting traveller on the desert discovers rippling waters—as the returning axile sees the home of his childhood—with the, same emotions, did Earle's thirsty Soul receive the words spoken by Ethel.

"God is very merciful."

Another moment and he sprang down the rocks, jumped into the little boat moored to the shore; gave a few vigorous strokes of the ears, and the hear's glided over the dark waters.

Cameron had underrated Ethel's power of endurance; he imagined that the was too securely heamed is by disconnistances, to admit of her taking measures to frustrate his plans. He afterwards discovered his mistake, however. In the morning, Ethel Thornton's first impulse was to lock out of her window. She needed not to be told that the last night's expedition had been fruitless—for the sangler of vessel was nowhere to be seen. In the night she had taken in her anchor, spread her window. She needed not to be told that the last night's expedition had been fruitless—for the sangler of the safety of the loved one out on the ocean.

The Omnipotent ear is ever open to our prayers, and though on the safety of the loved one out on the ocean.

When the meal was over, Ethel took her seat

When the meal was ever, Ethel took her seat in the bay window of the drawing-room, and took up her worsted work. Myra Ellis sat on a cushion at her feet, with her bright curls and pretty little head resting against Ethel.

The impending storm soon burst forth with violence. The angry waves were swellen to a mountainous height, and vivid flashes of lightning illuminated the scene.

"I do not think that I ever witnessed so fierce a storm," said Hastings Cleaveland. "Doubtless there will be much distress among vessels which are so unfortunate as not to be in harbor."

"Perhaps the smuggiers' craft which escaped

G

It

Gr

Bo

No No

Bu

Ple

W

Tr

harbor."

"Perhaps the smugglers' craft which escaped the Coast Guard, will fall a victim to the storm," said Oloott Cameron, and Ethel felt rather than saw that his eyes were bent upon her face.

"Ged watch over and protect you, Earle," thought Ethel, but she made no remark.

"How shall we charm away the time?" asked Myra. "Mr. Harry Ashton, will you not select some volume of poems, and read it to us?"

Mr. Ashton complied with her request, selecting fragments of poems from various authors; he concluded with Horne's "Butterfly at Sea."

"He dies, unlike his mates, I ween, Perhaps not seener nor worse crossed But he hath known, and felt, and seen, A larger life and hope, though lost Far out at see."

Far out at sea."

The sadly plaintive lines eank into Ethel's heart; how appropriate they now seemed.

"The storm has nearly expended itself," said Hastings to the gentlemen; "let us go down to the shore. If there has been a wreck, it shay be in our power to render some assistance."

For a half hour after the gentlemen left, Ethel set in comparative silence. At length she could bear the suspense no longer. She must know her brother's fate if possible.

"I am going to walk to the beach," she said hastily, and unheeding expostulation, she threw a searf around her, and went out. Reaching the shere, she walked to where Hastings Charreland stood.

"Have you discovered a wreck?" she asked.

"Yes. When we first came down we percosived a vessel at the meson of the worse, and in a sinking condition. The flatermen were assembled here, and had made every exertion to runder service, but in vain; the vessel went down a few measure age. It is supposed to be the immaggiars' each."

"And the cow—— at will be their fate?"

"It is sourcedy possible that they can escape a watery grave," replied Hastings, in a tone of emotion. "I suppose some of the hodies will soom be weaked asheer; but, dear Ethal, you are looking pale. This is no place for you. This storm and wreak must vividly remind you of that sed period of your life when you, and those you loved, were exposed to a like peril."

"Yes," she replied, faintly, thinking the while how far he was from suspecting the true cause of her agitation. "Let me remain here a little longes, Hastings, and then I will return."

Hr. Cleaveland was now called off, and Bthel was left alone. Soon she descried a dark object which the incoming tide was hearing toward the shore; another wave left a dead hody upon the sands.

Ethel knelt down by its side.

the sands.

Ethel knelt down by its side,

"Earle, deer Earle!"

She did not mean or weep, neither did she cherish a delusive hope. She knew full well that all was over. She parted the dark brown half upon his brow, and gased carnestly in the face which here no impress of pain or fear. The lines that she had heard read a short hour ago same to her mind.

"He hath known, and felt, and seen A larger life and hope, though lost Far out at sea."

Was that Appr and hife to be Earle's possession? She folded her hands reverently, and whispered the words of our beautiful Litany.
"Grant us Thy peace." "Have merey upon us."

ua."
God judgeth not as man judgeth! When Earle Thornton found himself face to face with death, he may have breathed a penitential prayer, which reached the ear of Him who is "mighty to save," and the words which he lingered over the night before, upon the cold, gray rock, may have become to him a precious reality, "God is very merciful." And Ethel Thornton found peace in the thought.

"Ethel, who is this?"
She turned her pale face to Hastings Cleaveones. "The Don doesn't choose for any you'y way.

Only one more body was washed ashore, that of an old, gray-haired man; the rest found a grave in the deep waters.

The following day they buried the old man and the youth down by the sea-shore. Some recognized the weather-embrowned young smuggler as Earle Thornton. A plain, marble slab marked the resting-place of the latter; no name was engraved upon it; there was only the date, and "Father, into Thy hands." In a few days the Alton party broke up and returned to London.

If he had nothing else but the cheet in his day, and her fine dark eyes flashed forth the bangty questions, just as plainly as her tongue.

"The Don! What do you mean, boy?"

"That's him," said the boy, pointing to a distint part of the deck. "He is as rich as all the mines of Brazil knocked into one, and he's as good as master of the ship, for his will's law. If he had nothing else but the cheet in his den.

It is probable that Olcott Cameron felt humiliated by the thought of the part he had played. Certainly if he sometimes dwelt upon the sad scene enacted at The Waste, he made no verbal demonstration.

What Mr. Thornton felt when he learned the sad tale of his son's death no one, not evan lant diamond ring she wore, and from a few dis-connected sentences spoken by Myra, she learn-ed that in the following spring her little friend would become Mrs. Harry Ashton.

And the years came and went, bringing only peace and happiness to Hastings and Ethel Cleaveland; they received their blessings with thankful hearts, and trusting the future into higher hands, faithfully performed the present duties which devolved upon them, and which ever bring their own reward. ever bring their own reward.

THE PRICE OF TRUTH.

Great truths are dearly bought. The com Such as men give and take from day to day, omes in the common walks of easy life, Blown by the careless wind across our way. Bought in the market, at the current price, Bred of the amile, the jest, perchance the bowl;

It tells no tales of daring or of worth,
Nor pleroes even the surface of the soul.

Great truths are greatly won. Not formed by chance,

Not wafed on the breath of summer dream
But grasped in the great struggle of the soul,
Hard buffeting with adverse wind and stream

Not in the general mart, 'mid corn and wine; Not in the merchandise of gold and gema; Nor in the world's gay hall of midnight mirth Nor 'mid the blaze of regal diadema.

But in the day of conflict, fear, and grief, When the strong hand of God, put forth might, longhs up the subsoil of the stagnant heart, And beings the imprisoned truth seed to t light.

Wrung from the troubled spirit, in hard hours
Of weekness, solitude, perchance of pain;
Truth springs, like harvest, from the well
plonghed field,
And the soul feels it has not wept in vain.

"Taxy Muux," on the publican said when

A wild, wet night! The driving sleet Blure all the lumps along the quay; The windows shake; the busy street Is yet alive with hurrying feet; The wind raves from the sea!

So let it rave! My lamp burns bright;
My long day's work is almost done;
I curtain out each sound and sight—
Of all the nights in the year, to-night
I choose to be alone.

Alone, with doors and windows fast,
Before my open desk I stand—
Alne! can twelve long months be past,
My hidden, hidden wealth, since last
I held thee in my hand?

So, there it lies! From year to year I see the ribbon change; the page Turn yellower; and the very tear That blots the writing, disappear And fade away with age!

Mine eyes grow dim when they beheld.
The precious trifles hoarded there—
A ring of battered Indian gold,
A withered harebell, and a fold.
Of sunny obsenut hair.

Not all the riches of the earth, Not all the treasures of the sea, Could buy these house-gods from my hearth And yet the secret of their worth Must live and die with me.

THE CHEST

SPLENDID LIST

**SPLENDID LIST*

**Auther of "Thesastopole" and other Poema.

**Particle Active of the States, "Active of the States, "Active

"The Don! Who is the Don? What do you mean, bey?"
"That's him," said the boy, pointing to a distant part of the deck. "He is as rich as all the mines of Brazil knocked into one, and he's as good as master of the ship, for his will's law. If he had nothing else but the chest in his cabin, he'd be richer than he could count, for it's full of gold and diamonda."

It's full of gold and diamonda."

In spite of her hauteur, which was natural to her, she gased in curiosity. Leaning inertly over the side of the thip was a tall, slender man, with a pale, fine face, and sleepy, dark eyes. She remembered to have seen him there when they came on board, and she had noticed that he never once turned his eyes towards them, but remained utterly indifferent to the new comers and the commotion they were causing.

Ethel, ever knew.

In the golden September days, Ethel Thornton and Hastings Cleaveland, were married. Hastings took his bride to Normandy, and the Seine, where they lingered until November's chilly blasts robbed those scenes of half their beauty, then they returned to London.

Myra Ellis was among the first who called upon Ethel. She blushed very prettily when the latter laughingly remarked upon the britte laughingly remarked upon the britten and the laughing the lau larking. The Don can check him, though, with half a turn of his sleepy cyclids. You must get a sight of the chest—such a big one! It is of carved ebony, with allver mountings."

"Why is he called the Don!"

"Because he is so rich, I suppose. He lost his wife and child out there, they say, and he's coming home for good. She was Spanish or Portuguese, and there was something odd about her, I fancy. The sallors, I know, whisper about it, but they won't tell me."

"And pray who are you?" demanded the young lady, resenting the familiar manner.

"Oh. I'm a middy. That's what they call

"Oh, I'm a middy. That's what they call us, at least; and a precious sham it is, only we don't know it before we sail. The skipper—"

To the temporary surptise of his listener, the young gentleman suddenly vanished. Looking round, she saw the "akipper" advancing, along with the gentleman passenger. The captain stopped as he came up, probably thinking it his duty to introduce them to each other.

"Mr. Valencia; Miss Gore."
Mr. Valencia; Miss Gore."
Mr. Valencia; Miss Gore."
in resentment of what the captain had done, and her voice carried a sound of scorn to that functionary's ear, as she corrected his mistake.

"I beg your pardon, sir; it is well to be correct. Mrs. Clytten, not Miss Gore."

"I beg yours, ma'am," replied the captain,

"I beg yours, ma'am," replied the captain, I had understood you were the major's daughter."

Vouchsafing no explanation, Mrs. Clytton tuned away, drawing her flowing black-and-white mustin gown around her slight and stately form, and carrying with her the remembrance of a stem face when in repose, but of a wenderfully attractive one when a smile illumined it—the face of Mr. Valencia. She was accosted by the maid.

"What do you want, Simms?"

"If you please, ma'am, Miss Auta is waiting to know which of the two berths you would be pleased to choose?"

be know which of the two beneas yellowed to choose?"

Mrs. Clyston descended to the cabin, one with two berths in it. A young lady, quite as elegant in form as herself, but with a face of little beauty, save what lay in its fair blue eyes and its sweet expression, stood there, patiently wait-

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

NEW LIFE, TALENT AND ENERGY. SPLENDID ARRAY OF CONTRIBUTORS UNSURPASSED AND UNSURPASSABLE.

That old favorite of the reading public, THE SATURDAY EVENING POST, has pessed into the management of a NEW FIRM, who are determined to infuse FRESH LIFE, TALENT and ENERGY into its columns. The popular nevel of the columns.

EMERSON BENNETT,

Author of "PRAIRIS FLOWER," "THE REPORTER," " CLARA MORELAND," &c., &c.

WRITE EXCLUSIVELY FOR THE POST. Mr. Bennett will begin a continued story in the first number of the New Year. It will be called

THE PHANTOM OF THE FOREST:

A TALE OF THE BACKWOODS.

This story will run through from twelve to fifteen numbers, and be a story of the early settlement of Restucky, including adventures with the indinas in that remantic region which was generally called by the pioneers of civilization, "the dark and bloody ground."
THE POST will be edited by Mrs. BELLA Z. SPENCER, who will also centribute a continued story in the course of the year, entitled

GENEVIEVE HOWE.

Our columns will be further supplied with original contributions by the following

SPLENDID LIST OF CONTRIBUTORS:

LILLIE DEVERSUE UMSTED. Mrs. Mary A. Denisson. Mary J. Allen. B. ARNIE FROST.
EMMA M. JOHNSTON.
Mrs. H. A. HEYDON,
Author of "Margiret's Biery," &c.
CLAUDE CLINTON, U. S. A. SOPRIE MAY. Mrs. Anna Bache. ANNIB F. KENT.

"AUNT ALICE."

FRANCES H. SHEFFIELD,
PHILA. H. CASE. PHILA H, CASE.
HARRIET W. STILLMAN.
CHARLES MORRIS.
LAURA J. RITTERHOUSE.
LIERIE MATTIERS.
IRENE BOYNTON.
MICH. M. C. CONTROL Miss H. S. Corry, Lucarn Elliott. Author of "A Blasted Lipe," Barbara Johns. Belle St. Aubyn. Miss A. Forestier.
Edwin R. Martin.
Sara J. Rumset.
T. J. Chambers, &c., &c., &c.

All of the Departments of the paper will be filled—as far as possible—with

ORIGINAL MATTER.

The old friends of THE POST—some of whom have stood by it during the sunshine and rty years—will thus see that we are determined to be

UNSURPASSED BY ANY COMPETITOR;

and in view of these fresh and costly efforts and brilliant inducements, we trust to have their warm exer-tions in our behalf, and the

LIBERAL SUPPORT OF A GENEROUS PUBLIC.

A SEWING MACHINE PREMIUM.

In order to enable ladies to procure a first quality Sewing Machine at very little outlay, we make the following liberal offers:—
We will give one of WHEELER & WILSON'S Celebrated Sewing Machines—the regular price of which is FIFTY-FIVE DOLLARS—on the following terms:—

We will give one of Wherlier & Willon's Collegated Rewing Machines—the regular price of which is FIFTY-FIVE DOLLARS—on the following terms:

1. Twenty copies, one year, and the Sewing Machine,

2. Thirty copies, one year, and the Sewing Machine,

3. Thirty copies, one year, and the Sewing Machine,

3. The first of the above Clubs, a lady can get twenty subscribers at the regular price of 22.50 a copy, and then by sending on these subscriptions, and fluesty Dollars in addition, will get a Machine that she cannot buy anywhere for less than Fifty-flueDollars. If she gets thirty subscribers and Seventy-flue Dollars, she will only have to add free Dollars to the amount. While if she gets farty subscribers at the regular price, she will get her Machine for nothing.

The paper will be sent to different post-offices if desired. The asmes and money should be forwarded as rapidity as obtained, in order that the subscribers may begin to receive their papers at once, and not become disastinged with the delay. When the whole amount of money is received, the Sewing Machine will be duly forwarded.

The Clubs may be composed partly of subscribers to THE POST, and partly to THE LADY'S FRIEND, if desired.

[[]] Is all cases the Machine sent will be the regular WHEELER & WILSON'S No. 3 Machine, sold by them in New York for Fifty-fve Dollars. The Machine will be selected new at the manufactory in New York, buzed, and forwarded free of cost, with the seception of freight.

Terms: Cash in Advance.

Twenty copies, one year, and one to getter up of club, 16,00

Twenty copies, one year, and one to getter up of club, 23,00.

One capy of THE POST and one of THE LADY'S FRIEND, 24,00.

[D] As the price of THE POST is the same as that of THE LADY'S FRIEND, the Clube may be emposed exclusively of the paper, or partly of the paper and partly of the magasine. Of course the smitum for getting up a Club may be either one or the other, as desired.

Any person having sents a Club may add ether names at any time during the year. The papers for a ab may be sent to different poet-offices.

[D] Subscribers in British North America must result swenty cents in addition to the annual subscripma as we have to prepay the U.S. postage on their papers.

Resultances chevid be made in Post Office Orders when possible. If not, in United States notes—or afte, payable to dur ereder, which are preferable to the notes.

[D] Specimen numbers of THE POST sent gratis. Address

HENRY PETERSON & CO.,

No. 319 WALNUT STREET, PHILADELPHIA.

[[] Rélitors inserting the above, or condensing the material portions of it for their columns, shall be ntitled to an exchange by mailing us a marked copy.

"Geraldine, will you be so kind as choose your berth?"

"Which is the most comfortable?"

"I think that one; it seems more airy than this."

"I'll take it, then," said Mrs. Clytton. And the younger lady meekly began to put her own things upon the other.

For a few days there was no great approach to intimacy, Mr. Valencia holding himself aloof. He was deferred to in every way, the new passengers found; and perhaps if there was one thing held in more reverence on board than Mr. Valencia himself, it was Mr. Valencia's ebony chest that he kept secluded in his cabin, and before which a handsome curtain was generally drawn. It was of curious value in itself, that chest, with its elaborate carrings and their adjuncts of silver.

The Gores had left their only son in a grave in Madelra, whither they had gone a year before, hoping to prolong his life. So much depended on it. Had he lived but two months longer, he would have willed it to his family. He died, and it went from them; and the major was returning to England a bitterly disappointed man; returning to Figure 1 and the wounter of the summ suc, while he told them tales of humiliations, for he had fully counted on this coening money for years, and had lived accordingly.

The hidden irreasures of that obset, filled to the very lid with diamonds and jevels, financed by feet her in a thereing vision by night and by day. Human had craftly thrown out defined questions on the subject to the servant, Vincent, and he responded without reserve. They were almost pricedent jevels, he affirmed; medition, rings, armiets, all fit for a queen; one there of diamonds was said to be worth eight threasured poems. Geraldine Clytten turned half false with deficient hope as the gathered this; and made up her mind, in the emoissement of her irredelible whereas, to be Goorge Valencia's accord wife. Not for himself did the care; but to be the minimum of and passe, she would harrow vall-sigh hartered her soul. The chest was of culium shape, beautiful as it was very long tail narrow; and Krs. Clytton remotines my the millore look askence of it, more in dread than in admiration. That come mystery, and not a pleasant one, was connected with it is their minds was avident, and the windowed greatly. Did they face tempetation? Not us, she. I would give all I am worth to lift the lift also pendenated murranted, gualing in at it one day from the cabin door, at it stood revealed behind the underswe corrisin. And Pd not up and the best made aligner to convey, a decidered a pooring aslier, is whose hearing she had unwintered appears.

"Here you been long in the Brantis ptr saked ing sallor, in whose hearing she had unwittingly apoles.

"Here you been long in the Brustle?" saked Major Gore one day, as they were all, encapt Mrs. Gore, who suffered from sea-sickness, alting on deels, Mr. Valencia leasing over the side in his contensary listless manner, while he waters.

"Ten years."

"In years of exile! A short while, though, to make a fortune in: which you have ddne, I belleve?"

rich."

"She must have died young. You cannot be more than forty."

"I am thirty-six. I dare say I look forty."

Geraldine Clytton's lips parted as she waited for more. She had become anxious to know comewhat of bis first wife. Major Gore con-

"What did your wife die of, Mr. Valencia?" Mr. Valencia extended his arm. "See! Is that a petrel? We shall have bed weather that a petrel? We shall have bed weather again."

Mojor Gore took his glass. "I think it's only a see-guil. Your wife, Mr. Valencia—has she been dead long?"

Mr. Valencia turned round and faced the major; his countenance stern, his lips drawn in. "Pardon me, Major Gore, but I would prefer to speak on some other subject. That is a petrel."

Major Gore stared and bowed. He was nest gifted with superfluous delicacy, and he presently entered on his questions again.

"Why do the saliors call you the Don?"

Mr. Valencia burst into a laugh. "They know, I suppose; I don't. Perhaps they take me for a Spaniard."

"Nothing less than a Don—whatever that important title may imply—would travel with a chest of jewels such as yours," interposed Geraldine Clytton in a tone between jest and sarnest; as she moved to his place at the ship's side, and looked after the bird, the harbinger of storm.

The words seemed to surprise Mr. Valencia.

The words seemed to surprise Mr. Valencia.

"Who told you I travelled with a chest of jewels, Mrs. Clytton?"

"Who told me? Oh, it's the talk of the ship. That large, beautiful ebony cheet, you know, in your cabin."

Had his face turned pale?—or was it only Mrs. Clytton's fancy, as she closely watched him? It changed; and the next moment sarcasm was pervading its every line.

"Joking apart, though, Mr. Valencia," she persisted, "does the chest contain jewels?"

"It does. Valuable jewels."

"And what shall you do with so many?"

"Bestow them on my wife when I marry again," he replied, looking fuil into her handsome face.

me face.
Had 1 , divined her secret thoughts ? For once Mrs. Clytton showed that she was annoyed: she turned to her cousin, speaking tartly. "Auta, how neglectful you are! Poor mamma keeps her cabin, and you sit here, never looking after her!"

Auta Gore, meck as ever, and lovely in her meekness, was hastening away, when Mr. Va-lencia offered his arm. She blushed as she took it.

"Your cousin is curious as to my jewels, Miss Gore. It does seem strange, I suppose, for a single man to possess so many. They were my wife's. Had my child lived, they would have been here; but she likewise died. My wife had a passion for coatly gems. Many of the

"But do not talk of your wife if it pains you to do so," said Auta simply, remembering the recently passed scene. "We cannot always bear to speak of the lost when they have been very dear to we."

dear to us."

"True. But my case is the opposite one. I did not love my wife, Miss Gore. Her memory is painful to me; I had almost said hateful."

"Oh!" exclaimed Auta.

"She gave me cause to hate her," he continued, in a low tone. "It was not a happy marriage from the first; she was older than I by some years, and we did not assimilate. I married her for money, not for love, more shame to me; still I—I—tried to do my duty by her. There's a confidence for you, Miss Gore. But I'm sure I don't know why I've told you; unless it is that you have assend to belong to me since I knew your name was Auta; it was my since I is that you have seemed to belong to me since I knew your name was Auta; it was my child's. Let the confidence rest between us."

She blushed again in the prettiest manner possible, by way of answer, and glanced up an assent from her blue eyes, as Mr. Valencia resigned her at the stairs leading to Mrs. Gore's cabin.

And the contrary winds continued, inter-spersed with dead calms; and the milers locked gloomy as death. How long was the voyage to last? One thing it favored—and that was the gloomy as death. How long was the voyage to last? One thing it favored—and that was the close and ripening intimacy between the passengers; and Mrs. Clytton might always be seen by the side of Mr. Valencia. For hours together they would pace the deek, her arm in bis. Whispers went abroad in the ship that he surely meant to make her his second wife. It might be so, Mr. Valencia was not the first man who has succumbed, spite of will, to the charms of an attractive woman.

Was it a dream? Mrs. Clytton sat up in her berth, the drops of horror gathered on her brow.

Entirely re-assured, thoroughly convinced, Mrs. Clytton forgave the man's familiarity and laughed with him, forgetting her dignity. She dismissed the subject from her mind from that moment. Vincent entered on a description of some of the treasures of the chest, and she listened until her pretty mouth watered. Two whole hours that evening was she chattering by the side of Mr. Valencia.

the side of Mr. Valencia.

The ship did arrive in port, and safely, in spite of the prognostics of the saliors; and the passengers parted at Southsmpton, only to meet again early in December, for Mr. Valencia had given a cordial invitation to the major and his family to meet him in his paternal home in Norfolk—his, now—and spend a long Christmas with him. And they arrived early in December, nothing loth, finding a home replete with every convasience, every luxery, and a warm welcome from Mr. Valencia, who in his turn had been warmly melecated by old friends a normal series warmly melecated. been warmly welcomed by old friends around.

It was an old-fashiened house, full of winding passages, in which Mrs. Clyston and Auta Gore lost themselves perpetually.

passages, in which Mrs. Clyston and Auta Gore loot themselves perpetually.

"It is a perfect home!" eried the major, in a rapture of admiration. "You have given it everything, Mr. Valencia, that can ensure happiness and comfort."

"Not quite perfect yes," dissented Mr. Valencia. "It wants one thing more, major, which I suppose I shall have to give it—a mistrees."

"Shall you add that?" inquired the major, his eye resting, perhaps unconsciously, on his daughter.

daughter.
"I hope so. The happiness denied to me in my first wife may be mine in a second. What do you think, Miss Auta?"

do you think, Miss Auta?"

Auta Goro colored so vividly at the unexpected question, that she was glad to escape in very self-consolousness; and Mrs. Clyston, full of contemptuous pity, said that Auta was growing more absurdly shy every day.

The days went on for all parties in a sert of Riyalum. Major and Mrs. Gore had never been so luxuriously off in their lives; Geraldine was indulging blissful visions, their whole basis, gold; and Auta was in the many depths of a first love-dream, whose ided was George Valencia. Her heart had gone out to him in those days when they were on the broad sea, when he had talked to her in low tenes, uncuspreted by anybody, and gazed into the depths of her blue eyes.

anybody, and gazed into the deptim or wer true eyes.

And the obsey cheet? It was in Mr. Velencia's privitie recens in the west wing of the house, fits estatus (as was understood) as yet undistorted. Geveldine Clyston's desire to see those priorities forwin to shortly, as she hoped, to be here, was proving almost irrepressive, fevering her spirit with its excitoment. Why could be not show thim to her? The question began to terment her sucre than was good for her equationly, and is gave rise to thoughts not institute.

notifiable.

But, let us hope that accident alone led to the step she facily took. On Christman Brothey were sitting out of doors, when Mr. Valonda, in taking semesting from his product, let had a long, with a small silver chain attended to include descents

open. Stead

me!"

Bhe put out her hand; she meant to pull them forth, those gleaming jewels, and look at them in the moonlight; but her fingers came in contact with—what? A face. A dead face, beyond a doubt, for it was cold and stiff. A cry of awful serror broke from her, coholung in the silence of the dread room; and Geraldine Clytton flew away, she knew not how or where. Instinct took her towards her own chamber, and man it she ran against Simma, the maid. mear it she ran against Simms, the maid.
"Ma'am, whatever is the matter?"

He am, whatever is the matter?"
Seizing the astonished servant by the arm, she pulled her into the chamber, and closed the door. She clang to her as though she would never let her go again. She crouched down in the warmth and light of the fire, her teeth chattering, her breath coming in gasps.

the warmth and ngue tering, her breath coming in gasps.

"But what is it?" reiterated Simms, more and more amazed. "Has anything frightened you, ma'am?"

"I—thought—I—saw something in the corridor," came the evasive answer. "Perhaps an owl had got in, Simms." She caused herself to be dressed: she was

"I—thought—I—saw something in the corridor," came the evasive answer. "Perhaps an owl had got in, Simms."

She caused herself to be dressed: she was alive to the importance of diverting all suspicion from herself, when Mr. Valencia should come to discover the raid on the chest; and she descended to the drawing-room. Mrs. Gore, its only inmate, was asleep by the fire; the major was sure to be in the dining-room, for he liked to sit long and enjoy a private eigar: but where were Auta and Mr. Valencia? A soft, silvery, happy laugh seemed to answer from the conservatory, and Geraldine Clytton turned to it; the mirrors, as she passed them, reflecting her own soared face, into which the warm blood would not come.

Auta was indeed there, with Mr. Valencia, But how? Her hands were clasped in his; his face was all close to her bent and blushing one. For one blasful moment Geraldine Clytton truly thought she saw some deceptive vision that had no place in reality—that could have none. The next, she had awakened to the truth, and stood there epcil-bound. She had never dreamt of this. Auda his love! when she had surely thought—, But whispered words were stealing distinctly on her ear; words that well-nigh drove her mad, and turned the current of every pulse she possessed into one living anger.

"My heart went out to you from the first, Auta; and I think you could not have misunderstood me. Geraldine? noncesse! She sought me; I did not seek her. I never had a thought of love but for you. My darling! my darling!"

Auta Gore started from his arm with a cry. That angry woman, with inflamed face and haughty mice, was bearing down upon them like one possessed of an evil spirit. Auta never distinctly remembered what followed. There were raised voices, recriminating words, and some strange charge that lifted her vury hair from her had. Major Gore stead heiding his daughter back; and Mrs. Gore, only half awake, was staring with her oap hanging so esecuted to the staring with her oap hanging so esecuted to the very hand here.

"I don't believe they are so very valuable, after all," burst forth Mrs. Clytton, her agi-tated voice vacillating between a sneer and a sob; "and—no, mamma, there's no necessity grapes."

"Gf course not," said Mr. Valencis, the faintest shade of a smile at the corners of his sleepy cyclids. "But the next time you accuse a man of murder, Mrs. Clytton, I'd make sure beforehand, if I were you, that it did not end in waxwork."

Address Das BABCOCK & BON, novi-3m No. 27 Bend Street, New York

THE BRAUTIFUL ART OF ENAMELLING THE SEIS THE BRADTIPUL ART OF ENABLLING THE BELF.

HUNT'S FRENCH SKIN ENAMEL whitens
the complexion permanently, giving the skin a soft, pearly appearance, ramoves tan, freckies, pimples, and does not injure the skin. Sent by mail for 36 cents. HUNT & CO., Perfumers, 41 South 6th 8t., Philadelphia.

mar4-ly

Philadelphia.

"GREAT OAKS PROM LITTLE ACORNS GROW."—The worst diseases known to the human race spring from causes so small as to almost defedenction. The volumes of scientific lore that ill the tables and sherves of the medical fraiernity only go to prove and ela-oraw these facts.

Then guard yourselves white you may. The smallest pimple on the skin is a tell-tale and indicator of disease. It may fade and die away from the surface of the body, but it will reach the vitais, perhaps, at last and death be the result and final close. Maggiel's Billious, Dyspeptie, and Diarrhon Pills cure where all others fail. While for Burns, Scalds. Chilbla-ns Cu s, and all abrasions of the skin Maggiel's Rally is infallible. Soid by J. Maggiel, ta Puiton street, New York and all Drangiste for the caper hox. Soid by J. Maggiel, ta Puiton street, New York and all Drangiste for the caper hox. Soid by J. Maggiel, ta Capero, Philadelphia, sole agents for the State of Penneyivania.

PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER .- We are not in the habit of "puffing" patent medicines, but we cheerfully add our testimony to that of many other in favor of this medicine. The PAIR KILLER is in valuable for the diseases for which it is recomm ed Try a bottle of it and see if we do not state or setly .- Roman Citizen.

Pare! Fire! Pire! Persons laboring under this distreming malady will find Stanca's Spileptic Pills to be the only remoty over discovered for curring Epilepsy or Falling Pits Sent to any part of the country by mail, free of postage Address SETH S. stance, is Baltimore street. Baltimore, Md. Price—one sor, S1 two, 86; twelve, 804.

Itch, Itch, Scratch no More. "lich" Cures in from 12 to 48 hours. "Tetter"
"lich" Swatzur's Othvine Fr. "Totter"
"lich" Swatzur's Othvine Fr. "Totter"
"lich" Swatzur's Currumert. "Totter"
"lich" Swatzur's Currumert. "Totter"
"lich" State Falls to Curr Theory of Medicated Inhalation.

LETTER No. IV. SYMPTOMS OF CONSUMPTION.

To the Editors of the Sat. Hoe. Post. Bin :- In our last letter we concluded our observa-tions on the diseases of the Ness, Threat and Bren chial Tubes, and we row come to speak of Consump tion, that dread malady in which these affections neglected, invariably end. It is no unusual thing to hear designated as "

mere cold," or "a slight broachial affection," symptoms which should excite the greatest anxiety, symptoms which should excite the greatest anxiety, as indicating the commencement of tubercular depo-sition. When the physician prescribes anything by the stomach, to allay such symptoms, he only masks the danger, and gives temporary relief, while the disease itself progresses in the lungs, and becomes more firmly scated. Thousands this way mislead themselves until the cavance made by the disease themselves, until the ravages made by the discu render self-deception no longer possible. Instead of the premised return to health, the poor invalid finds all his symptoms steadily growing worse, and grows importunate for relief. He finds that the limit exertion increases his shoriness of breath, and that he is slowly, but surely, losing firsh. To quiet to "take a sea voyage," or to "go to a warm eli-mate for a season." If it be spring, he is told he wall get well so soon as he can enjoy the "purs bra-cing air of the country;" and if it be winter, that he must be patient and wait for the "snawing spring" But, alos! for those who put faith in these delusive promises! Too many learn when too late that the "country" referred to lies beyond the of until life's fifui fever is over "

Permit us, then, by a simple narrative of the signs by which consumption may be known in its early stages, to point out the danger while there is yet strangth enough in the system to throw off the dis-If the invalid waits for " purclent expectoration," the arrival of the third stage, and we need not tell him that when disease is far advanced, cure is al-ways difficult and the result uncertain. If, on the other hand, he is treated in the early stage, while the system is yet strong and the lungs not broken down, he can look forward to cure, under proper

One of the earliest signs of consumption is cough For a considerable time this is so slight as to be en-tirely evertooked by the patient, and may scarcely be noticed by his nearest relatives, it being in realit after meals and after walking or conversing. So weeks or months later, varying with the progress the disease, the morning cough is attended by expec-toration of a clear fluid, like saliva, and generally freshy. After a time little points of pale yellow or grayish yellow matter make their appearance in the frethy mueus, and as the disease advances this in-creases, until it almost takes the place of the glear pectorated in this disease. Occasionally the quantity is very small, even where there is extensive disease of the lungs; while, on the other hand, it may be profuse, steadily increasing from the commencement until it reaches, in the last stage, half a pin or more in twenty-four hours. In many advanced cases the sputa looks like little balls of cotton or wood, and in others is of a greenish peliow calor Now, when a dry hacking cough steals upon a person in apparent health, and without the occurr may possibly properties and always end in consumption; but it is suspicious, and so man who values health will disregard its shifts the expectoration is in the early stage, a bluish-colored sticky mucus, or phlegm, mixed with more or less of frothy saliva.

m running quickly up a flight of stairs, or walking ip a bill. In the early stage this is very slight, for he amount of obstruction in the lungs is small; but is less a shortness of breath than a sense of rightness and spression in the chest on any ac-tive exertion. Many persons when questioned in re-gard to this symptom, will draw a deep breath and forcibly strike the chest with the fist, remarking, there's nothing the matter there." But, unfort Persons who have small lungs experience the sen have naturally large lungs, because the latter case Camerana Current without pairs or the use of the haife. Tumora, White Swellings Goitre, Ulsers, and all Chronic Diseases successfully treated. Cireated by sighing. All persons have their breathing hurried by exertion, but it is easy for the patient to distinguish between the amount of exertion be is now ble to undergo and that he could endure when in perfect health. The number of respirations in health aries from sixteen to seventeen in the minute. If a person supposed to be healthy is found to breathe more frequently than this when quiet and not aware that the number of his respirations are being counted, set it down as a sure sign that he has, more or less. shortness of breath. The blood requires for its purification that we should take into the lungs a certain quantity of air in a given period of time. The union between the expgen of the air and the carbon of the blood is a chemical union, and can only take place in definite proportion—that is to say, we re-quire sufficient air to cause the removal of the carconsecous impurity of the blood, and if, owing to shatructions in the lungs, we do not respire in from Startictions in the tunys, we do not respire in from Afteen to seventeen respirations a minute, the re-quired quantity, we must make up the deficiency by breathing more often; and if we increase the num-ber of breaths taken in a judicute, we necessarily shorten the length of each breath. This, then, is what is meant by shortness of breath.

· Each additional respiration, as a rule, increase the pulse about fee beats. Hence, in consumption, the pulse keeps pace with the shortness of hreath if a person is found to take twenty respirations in a minute, his pulse will be about eighty or eighty-five. If the number of respirations be increased to twenty-ave, the pulse will range from one hundred and fre to one hundred and ten. This is not invariably the case, but the exceptions are rare. In health the pulse should range from sixty to sixty-right, the case, but the exceptions are rare. In gentle the pulse should range from sixty to sixty-right, the average being about sixty-four bests in the migute. If therefore, you have a hacking cough and slight shortness of breath, on exertion, scompanied by an increase in the frequency of the pulse of ten of Afteen beats per minute, you cannot doubt the exist-cases of mischief in the lungs, and abould instantly

In next Saturday's issue we promures in a second letter on the most formidable disease. Your shodlest servants, d letter on the symptoms of this

R. & J. Huntun. Nors -Des. Hunter and Ramsey can be

Washarath & Baywa's Priz Operator of seasons blances, iscoutes at the newthern seasons blacked process, and familiarly seasons blacked process, and familiarly seasons with the seasons of the seasons of

SURE CURE POR DYSPEPSIA—COX'S Dys.
PEFSIA FILLS.—Dyspeptics should have their value. They are our is all cases where the discussion and organic. Every person who has been relieved at once. One pill cash sight before going to bed for three nights in section. and then emit four nights. There pitts, bester their thoroughly effective, are mild in their openion.

MARRIAGES.

Marriage notices must always be accept a responsible name.

On the flat instant, by the Rev. John Thompson, Mr. Harry Shaw to Miss Maylina McNaber, both of this city.
On the 14th instant, by the Rev. W. Konney, B. D., TROMAS L. HERSON to MARY, daughter of Wm. Mills, Esq., both of Germantown.
On the 18th of New, by the Rev. J. H. Petere, My. William Johns to Miss Armin B. Peyrans, both of the city.

Can the 16th inesant, by the Rev. Thes. Murphy, assisted by the Rev. Jas. Price, Mr. Jarus Baiapio Miss Rarsecca Rosans, both of Frankford.
On the 19th of Nov., by the Rev. W. T. Eve, Mr. Jacob Haven to Miss Christians Wolf, both of this city.

this city.

On the 17th instant, by the Rev. N. D. McComm
Mr. Albury Jacoby to Mrs. Harrar Clears both of Rieing Sun.

BEATHS.

IT Notices of Deaths must always be accompanied by a responsible name.

ist year.
On the 16th instant, ELIMADETH N., wife of John Patterson, in her 35th year.
On the 17th instant, Mr. James Sloan, in his 65th

On the 17th instant, HERRY ARMSTRONS, aged 27

care.
On the 16th instant, Thomas H. Houston, in his 98th year.
On the 18th instant, Miss ELIZABETH PARKERSON, aged 30 years.
On the 18th instant, Joseph Christian wood, aged 36 years. On the 13th instant, David E. Jones, in his 67th

THE LADY'S FRIEND

The JANUARY number of this beautiful me The JANUARY number of this beautiful maga-zine is a magniflown one. The leading steal engraving, "The Forest Glearer," is a perfect gem of beauty. We do not know where the publishers of the Lady's Friend get such beau-tiful designs for their engravings. Then we have a gorgeous colored plate, "The HAND BANNER SCREEN IN CHEMILLE OF VELVEY," which have a gorgeous colored plate, "The HAND BANNER SCREEN IN CHENILLE OF VELVER," which she ladies say is magnificent. The LARGE DOUBLE COLORED STEEL FASHION PLATE is as usual superb—we had almost said unequalled. Another engraving, called "Bisphen Wherton's Will," which illustrates a fine story, is very suggestive. Then we have a beautiful plate of Children Skating, intended to illustrate the sloter styles of children's clothing; with numerous other plates illustrating Hair Note, Winter Dreeses, Borders for Jackets, various new styles of Boonets, Winter Cassaques, Paletots, Jackets, Embroidery, Chemises, Night Dress, Anoies. Head-Dreeses, Patchwork, &c., &c.

The literary matter is excellent. Among the articles, we note "Stephen Wharton's Will," "Mrs. Trunk," by Frances Lee; "Paul's Story, or French Lessons;" "Clarice," by August Bell; "The Two Nightingales." "Stories of our Village," by Beatrice Colonna; "In Illness," by Fiorence Percy; "Ruchel Dana's Legaoy," by H. A. Heydon; "Arthur's Wife," "Loving Mary," Editor's Department, The Fashious, Household Receipts, &c. The following is the list of

CONTENTS FOR JANUARY: STEEL PLATE—THE POREST GLEANES. COLORED FASHION PLATE. HAND BANNER SCREEN' IN CHENILLE ON ILLUSTRATIONS:

Stephen Wharion's Will—Children's Winter Coats—Net, with Grelot's of Wax Beads—Sor-der for a Jacket, Burnoss, &c.—Wister Dress for a Little Girl—Handkerchief Vignotis. MUNIC.—Ferguson's Polks.

MUNIC.—Ferguson's Polks.

STEPHEN WHART-N'S WILL.

CHILDHOOD By Pysil Park.

"PRACK." By Emilia Lessan Lines.

MRS TRUNK. By Francis Les.

MY PILLOW AND I. By MARCIA HOPS.

SUMMER RAIN. By S FILLMORE BESSETT.

"A WO MAN'S SACRIFICE." By Leslis WalTER.

SONG. By Bratzics Colossa.

PAUL'S STORY; OR, FRENOE LESSONS. By

TRACY TOWNS.

CLARICE. By AUSTEY BELL.

THE TWO NIGHTINGALES. By AUSES FORM
TIKE.

THE TWO NIGHTINGALISE.

TIES.

PRAYER. BY EDWIK R. MARTIE.

THE INSPIRATION OF WINTER.

STORIES OF OUR VILLAGE. BY BRATRICE COLOWNA.

IN I. LINESS. BY FLORENCE PERCY.

LINES. BY IDA MASON.

RACHEL DANA'S LEGACY. BY H. A. HEYDOR.

TWILIGHT MUSINGS. BY AWAY ALICE.

LOVING MARY. BY JESSIE TEMPLE.

ARTHUR'S WIFE.

NOVELTIES FOR JANUARY. WITH Illustra HOME.

EDITOR'S DEPARTMENT. New Publications.
Miscultanious Rechipts.
Fashions—Description of Colored Pushion
Plate.

Price $2.50 a year; 2 copies $4; 8 copies (and one gratic) $16. Now is the time to get up clube for 1866. The Prospectus of thic magnine for next year embodies a splendid list of contributors. The publishers give WHEELER & WILSON'S calebrated $55 Sewing Machines on the following terms:

Twenty copies and the Sewing Machine, Thirty copies and the Sewing Machine, Forty copies and the Sewing Machine, Send 15 cents for a sample copy to DEACON
2 PETERSON, 819 Walnut Street, Philadel-

THE BOWEN MICROSCOPE,

Address F. P. BOWEN, Bog 830, Besten, Ess.

LADY WHO. MAS SEES CURED OF great nervous debidity, ofter many years of sty, decires to make known to all follow-nervous nervous of relief. Address, including a strong, S. M. MERRITT, P. C. Box 269, Borres, and the measurement of the strong of the strong

Rates of Advertising. EP Payment is required in advan

MENDENHALL'S Improved Solf-Acting

HAND LOOM

FARMERS

an he independent, by weaving all their goods for ome wear on the Mendenhall Improved Hand Loom EP From 15 to 40 yards can be weven on it in a

No skill is required to weave upon it, beyond the imple turning of an easy crank. A woman or child simple invaling of an easy stream.

can operate it.

THE MENDENHALL IMPROVED LOOM wraves Jeans, Estinet, Tweed, plais and double plais Cloth, Lincoy, Blanket Twill, Lincoy, Teveling, Bird-oye Diaper, Salmeral Skirt Goods, &c., &c., all on the same warp, with one time drawing in the harness. It size weaves all Wool, Hemp, Lines and Rag Carpeting.

EACH LOOM IS WARRANTED to be and de as represented, and cannot fail to give

INDUCEMENTS TO PURCHASERS.

Every purchaser of the Improved Loom will be flowed a liberal commission on each Loom sold by sem, thus eachling them with a little exercise, to series back the price paid for their Loom. [[7] Looms, Loom Findings, Black and White otton Warp, Filling Yara, &c., constantly on hand. For descriptive circulars, list of prices, and sam-les of cloth wove on the Loom, address, with stamp sclosed.

GREENWOOD LOOM COMPANY, CINCINNATI, OHIO, or A. B. GATES & CO., Philadelphia, Pa.

BOOKS! BOOKS!! BOOKS!!!

THE HOLIDAYS ARE COMING.

We have just completed one of the most extensive ssortment of Books of all kinds that we ever had. An imagence variety of coutifully colored or plain; large pictures and small. Some are printed on lines untearable. They will outlast a dozen toys.

SUPERB ENGLISH BOOKS. CHILDREN'S TOY BOOKS.

STANDARD JUVENILES!

BOOKS OF POETRY!

gious, Sentimental and Standard Poets, gantly illustrated and splendidly bound.

PHOTOGRAPH ALBUMS, GIFT BOOKS,

BIBLES AND PRAYER BOOKS.

The largest and most superb assortment in the city.
Our OXFORD BiBLES must be seen to be appre ciated. What more appropriate for a present than a handsome family Bible! We offer all the above a the VERY LOWEST CASH PRICES.

ASHMEAD & EVANS.

794 CHESTNUT STREET.

PREMIUM GOLD MEDAL

AMERICAN BELL COMPANY'S RTEEL COMPOSITION

BRONZE METAL BELLS

32 LIBERTY STREET, NEW YORK.

The following is a copy of the cartificate of the Board of Managers of the American Institute in response to the Report of the Committee of Judges on Bells: No. 269.

G. M. This is to certify, that a GOLD MEDAL was awarded the AMERICAN BELL COMPANY for STELL COMPANY BY STALL BELLS, with Harrison's Rotating Hanging apparatus.

ing apparatus.
(Signed) JOHN W. CHAMBERS,
Secretary Soard of Manager

American Institute,
New York, Oct. 33d, 1885.
This is the highest commendation ever given by the American Institute to any Bell Founder in the United States.

AMERICAN BELL COMPANY,
nov 18-6m
39 Liberty Street, New York.

$1500 PER YEAR!—We want agents every—$1500 where to sell our improved $100 Sewing Machines. Three new kinds. Under and upper feed. Warranted five years. Above salary or large commissions paid. The owll's machines sold in United States for less than $40 which are fully lisensed by Howe, Whesler $ Wilson, Grover $ Baker, Singer $00., and Bachellar. All other cheap machines are disprisagements. Directory free cheap machines are disprisagements. Directory Vegly, No. 326 Carter $1., Philadelphia, Pa.; No. 14 Lombard's Black, Chicago, Ill; No. 170 West Yourth $1, Cincianati, O.; or No. 5 Spaulding's Exchange, Buffalo, N. Y.

do:18-3a.

Choice Tries, Quartets, &c., for Cheirs. Quartots from Bosthoven arr. with Organiace., by A. Davenpert. Trust in Ged. 30. O Lord, veil not Thy face, 50. Praige ye the Lord. 50. Colestial Hope. 50. Morning and Evening. Pieces designed as Voluntaries, by L. H. Southard. Bejotes the heart of thy Servant. 50. is will praise the heart of thy Servant. 50. is will praise the. 60. I will be glad. 40. Bisses do be the Lord. 40. Trust in 6ed. 40. Let thy loving Mosev. 40.—O that I had wings. (Qt.) Barker. 30. Let the day of rest declineth. (Qt.) Emerson. 30. Guide me., O thou great Jehyvah. Emerson. 35. Jerus, Savious, of my Soul. (Qt.) Wilson. 30. Seat., past-guid, on recedit of price by the publishers. OLIVER DITESON & 40., Besten.

44 PROM 50 CENTS.

no semothing argently needed by apic will be sent free by andi for the for 96. X. L. WOLCOTT, No. 170 Chetham Square, N. Y.

GET THE BEST.

WEBSTER'S

UNABRIDGED DICTIONAR NEW ILLUSTRATED EDITION,

Thoroughly Revised and much Enlarged, OVER 2000 FINE ENGRAVINGS.

WELL-HIGH INDISPENSABLE REQUISITE POR EVERY TEACHER'S DESK,

living important aid in every branch taught in our schools, and of constant use and convenience in EVERY INTELLIGENT PARILY.

contains 10,000 WORDE and MEANINGS ast found in other Dictionaries.

ver thirty able American and European scholars employed upon this revision, and ranny vanae of labor expended upon it being more than in the original preparation of almost any other English Dictionary. It is now believed to be by far the most complete, useful, and astirated by the tionary of the language ever published, as it is by far the largest single valume ever issued in any language.

he peasestion of any ether English Dictionary, or may previous edition of this cannot compensate for the want of this very full and complete one. In its peasent perfected state, it must long remain the

BEST ENGLISH DICTIONARY,

ed once possessed, remain of constant and abblin good Dictionary? saising one-Afth or one-fourth more matter than an; former editions. om new electrotype plates and the Riverside Press.

IN ONE VOL. OF 1840 ROYAL QUARTO PAGES. "GET THE LATEST." "GET THE BEST." "GET WEBSTER."

Published by G. & C. MERRIAM, Springfield Mass., and J. B. LIPPINCOTT, & CO., Philada Sold by E. H. BU FLEE & CO., Philada, LIND BAY & BLAKISTON, do., JAMES CLAXTON, do., U. HUNT & SUN. do., SMITH & ENGLISH do., RIGGINS & PERKINPINE, do., MOSS & CO., do., SOWER & BARNES, do., THEO. BLISS, do., and ALL BOOKSELLERS.

"BEST OF ALL THE AMERICAN NEWS papers devoted to matters of MURAL ECONOMY, is what the Scottish Former, Edinburgh, says of

THE CULTIVATOR

COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY LUTHER TUCKER & SON, ALBANY, NEW YORK.

A New Yolume of this Journal commences with January 1, 1808. "Standing at THE HEAD of the Agricultural Press of the Country," as the Maine Former says, —the Publishers are convisced that its meetite only need to be more widely known, in order to HOUBLE its present VERY EXTENSIVE CIRCULATION. To that end they have determined to offer PREE COPIES for the remainder of the current year to any persons who either endos their subscribe at that items.

The Cultivator and Country Gentleman constitution to subscribe at that of consubicribe at that sime.

The Cultivator and Country Gentleman supplies 538 large quarte pages in the course of the year. Its corps of contributors is very large, embracing every State in the Union; and the Gardeners' Monship lately said of its editorial management, that it is "Conducted with a degree of talent equal to any European Journal, and SUPERIOR TO MOST of them." It contains Departments for them." It centains by The Practical Farmer,

Blook Breeder and Wool Grower,
Dairyman, Poultry Keeper and Apiarist,
Fruit Grower and Gardener,
Rural Architecture, Entomology,
The House-Keeper,
The Naturalist, &c., &c.

Illustrations are freely employed wherever they can be made to clucidate the subjects treated, and the comprehensive nature of its design is such as to suit it equality well to ALL laditudes and localities in which improved PARMING to sought for.
TERMS—THE CULTUATOR AND COUNTY GRATLEMAN is mailed to subscribers at the following rates:

rates:
Due Copy, one year,
Four Copies, one year,
Eight Copies, one year,
Fifteen Capies, and one free to the sender of Fifteen Copies, and one free to the sender of the List,
Sample Copies sent without charge, or FREE COFIES under the above offer, by addressing LUTHER TUCKER & SUN, dec30-8t Editors and Publishers, Albany, N. Y.

P. S. PETERSON & Co.

(Late Withers & Peterson,)

SO SOUTH THIRD ST., PHILADELPHIA, STOCK AND EXCHANGE

BROKERS.

STOCKS, BONDS, &c., Bought and Sold at Source of Brokers and privately.

73-10 TREASURY NOTES constantly on hand and will be sold at lowest rates. All orders for GOVERNMENT SECURITIES

UNCURRENT MONEY Bought and Sold. Collection of NOTES, DRAFTS, &c., made in all the Loyal States and Canada.

DRAFTS furnished on all accessible points.
mys-ly

PENS! PENS! PENS!

Gold Pens for Holiday Presents!

On account of the near approach of the Heilders, we offer our large Stock of UOLD PENS and PEN-CILS, with Gold and Silver Extension, or Ebony Heiders of every description, at 40 per cent. less than the usual retail price.

Bend early for New Catalogue and Price List to R. M. MORE & CO., dec:6-4t Station D., New York City.

BROWN'S

Metalite Weather Strips and Window Bands

Totally excepte Dust, Noise and Odor in summer as well as Oald, Wind and Rain in winter frost doors and windows of every description without in terforing with their free use at all times.

WARRANTED GOOD FOR FIVE YEARS. For Circulars, with price list, references. &c., address the METALLIO WEATHER STRIP COMPANY.

DAVID H. LOSEY. Agents.

28 South Fith St., Philadelphia.

WORKING-MEN'S OPPORTUNITY. Address I. A. PECK, Box 1969, Philadelphia, by Circular of North Carolina Colony, "decis-ti

BRADBURY'S PIANOS.

New, Large, and Grand Seale, Pall Iron-Frame ver-Strung Sees, and every real modern improv-tent. They are warivalled, brilliant, rich in tea and durable.

Also, Hists; Flocher; and Krusshaar & Co.'s fine-tened and brilliant Plance.

Treat Lineley & Co.'s First Premium PARCOR ORGANS Floc Arest premiums over all other Or-gans, at State Fairs this Fall.

nov85-3m 1108 Chretnut Street, Philadelphia

MUSTARD! MUSTARD! MUSTARD!!!

"City of Boston."

First invoice of GLORNEY MUSTARD, manufactured in the City of Dublin, Iredand, expressly for sales, out of new seed. This Restord ranks ong the few stricks of Irish manufacture that annual a high place in the world—Bublin Poplin, bills Ferier and Dublin Mustard have move been siled. I quote from Mr. Glorney's letter; "We a fitted up twenty stemps additional, which we are will be able to supply you, as it has the sie mill machinery to supply the Irish, Spotch English trade."

hose Mills were established in 1912.

HENRY CHAPMAN, No. 932 Arch Street.

Sole Agent for the U. S. and Canada. SPICES.

TEAS. TEAS. TEAS The cheapest and best in the city

COFFEE. COFFEE. COFFEE. The cheapest and best in the city.

HENRY CHAPMAN. 932 ARCH Street, below Tenth, Philadelphia

HOLIDAY PRESENTS. FIRST PREMIUM

IMPROVED

SEWING MACHINE!

MBODIMENT OF FRACTICAL UTILITY AND EXTREME SIMPLICITY

Patented May 13th, 1688, improvement patented June 5th, 1643. The collebrated PAMILY OFEM BEWING MACHINE, a most Wenderful and Eleganty Constructed Novelty; is not suture in operation, uses the straight with June 18 the straight of Binels Transan. Makes the Running Stitch our Single Transan Makes the Running Stitch our sperfest and regular, than by hand and with extraordinary rapidity. Will Gather, Hem, Reffe, Mairr, Tuck, Run up Breadths. Ac., Ac.; requires no Lubrication or Change of Stitch—is not Libra to our our or opens, and will less a Livrayum.

"For the December it is invaluable, for the Leaster Book.

'It mose a common needle, sews very rapidly, and is so easily understood that a child one use it."—

New York Independent.

'With single or double thread, it eliently, yet very rapidly, with a common needle, makes the running stitch exsetly like hand sewing."—New York Tribune.

Single machines sent to any part of the country or express, suched is hox with printed instructions a receipt of the price, S. Agents wanted every-there. Circular containing Liberal Inducements

PAMILY GEM SEWING MACHINE CO., sep83-6m Office, 102 Nassau St., New York.

NATURAL, GRACEFUL AND BEAUTIFUL.

IVINS' PATENT HAIR CRIMPERS

For crimping and waving indies' hair. No hast used and as infury to the hair.
They are put up in beau-tifully lithegraphed boxes containing one sett (1 des ) assorted lengths, with full directions for use accompanying each rox.

No ladies' tolict is complete without them. For saic throughout the country. Retailers will be supplied by any first-class Jobber of Netions in New York, Philadelphia, or Boston Manufactured only by E. IVINS, Sixth St. and Columbia Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa.

GET READY: GET THE BEST :- A New Volume: Look out for January Pictorial Double No. of the Illustrated PHRENOLOGI-CAL JOURNAL, with Physiognomy, or "Signs of Character," Ethnology, or the Races of Men; Physiology, the Laws of Life and Health; Phre-Physiology, the Laws of Life and Health; Phre-nology and the Temperaments, with choice of pur-suits; Psychology, the Science of the Soul; Our Pocial Relations, including Love, Couriship and Marriage; Education and Self-imprevenent, with such other matters as all ought to know, and can be found in no other publication. It is the best and cheapest work of its size and price. Terms—$2 a year; single Nos. 30 cts. Suiteeribe at once. Ad-dress Mears. POWLER & WELLS, No. 389 Broadway, New York.

PER DAY

Made easy by every Agent who sells our GREAT, NEW and WORDERFE EXTRA LARGE SIZE STATE, NEW AND WIND SELLAGE. The GREATES MORNEY MAKING BUSINES OF the age Each Package contains LARGE QUARTITIES of Fine Writing materials. EVERTURIES REW, south as Paper, EAVELOPES, Pensils, Blotters, Ladice Faris Pashion Plates, Designs for Needia-Work, Roop-Schoe, Richarden, Guide for letter writers, Engravings, Indias Recipes, or how to live writesut a Doctor, Gents Pochet Calendar, Many Ways to Get Rich, Yankee Notions, all kinds of Recipes, Rich and Fashionable Jewelry, in all worth several deliars. Rotali price only 25 cents. Gold and Bilver Wartens presented TRES to All. who act as our agents. Send for our new Circular with extra Premium Inducements.

W. D. Gilbert & CO., nov18-3m.

1865. FALL

I. E. WALRAVEN. MASONIC HALL,

a new open his Fall importation of E CURTAINS, BOCATELLE CURTAINS, SALER TERRY CURTAINS, SATIN DAMANK CURTAINS, WOOL REP CURTAINS, BOTTIN LAINE CURTAINS, BOTTINGEAM CURTAINS,

PARISIAN NOVELTIES. sing the Calchested

SMYRNA CLOTH

MODE RIDEAUX, TABLE AND PIANO COVERS

WINDOW SHADES, every destroble style or color.

WALRAVEN, FOR THE HOLIDAYS. "A Scientific Wonder."

EUROPEAN POCKET

TIMEKEEPER.

ONE DOLLAR EACH. PATENT APPLIED FOR JUNE 80, 1008.

WHEELER & WILSON'S HIGHEST PREMIUM

LOCK STITCH

Philadelphia Agency, No. 704 Chestnut St.

These Machines are now sold, with valuable imes, at the following schedule of prices:-

No. 3 Machine, with Plain Table,
Half Case, Panelled, Oiled Walnut,
Half Case, Polished, Black Walnut or Mahogany, 65

No. 1 Muchine, with Polished Table,
Half Case, Olled Walnut,
Half Case, Olled Walnut,
Half Case, Polished, Rosewood,
Pull Case, Polished, Black Walnut or Mahogany, 168
Pull Case, Polished, Black Walnut or Mahogany, 168
Pull Case, Polished, Black Walnut or Mahogany,
With Drawers,
Pull Case, Polished, Roswood,
110

Every Machine is said complete with a Hemmer. Nos. 1 and 2 Machines are said with the new Glass Cloth-Presser, New-style Hemmer and Sraider. No. 3 with the Old-style Hemmer.

The number 3, plain table, (worth 865) of the above list, is the machine we are now offering as a PREMIUM for THE LADY'S PRIMED and THE SATUR-DAY EVENIMO POST—see Prospecies. Any of the

DEACON & PETERSON, $19 WALNUT STREET, PHILADELPHIA

DURNO'S CATARRH SNUFF,

Which, in the first stages of a cold, acts like magic —Headache, Hearsenses, Diphtheria, and Bronchitis, Sore Eyes, Deafaces, Bad Taste and Smell, being the result of Catarrh. This anuf removes and prevents all these, and incures a healthy Head. Its effects are pleasant and safe, even for infants who suffer from beautes.

It has the highest professional testimonials. Bold by all Druggists, or sent by mail to all parts of U. S., for 30 cents for one box, or $1 for four boxes. Address, JAS. DURNO, P. O. Hox 1935, New York.

Wholesde, by D. BARNES & CO., $1 Park Row,
New York.

WEST JERSEY RAILROAD LINES.—Daily except Paudays.
Commoncing Thursday, Aug. 26th, 1965, from foot of Market street, apper forry.
For Cape May, &c., at 9-30 A. M., M-*1; 9-30 P.
M., Passenger.
For Millville and Vineland, 0-30 A. M., Mil, and 9-30 P. M., Passenger.
For Bridgeton, Salem, &c., at 9-15 A. M., Mail,
4 P. M.
For Giassbore', &c., 6-30 and 9-15 A. M., 8-30, 4
P. M.
For Woodbury, &c., 9-15 A. M., 2-30, 4 and 6-30
P. M.
RETURNING

RETURNING, WILL LEAVE Cape May at 8 A. M., Mail; 5 P. M., Passenger. Miliville at 6-30 and 10-03 A. M.; 6-50 P. M. Bridgeton at 6-40 A. M., Mail; 6-20 P. M., Pas Salem at 6-25 A. M., Mail; 4-06 P. M., Passen ger. Woodbury at 7-05, 8-13 and 11-36 A. M.; 5-54 and 8-26 P. M., Passooger. J. VAN RENBSELAER, Superintendent West Jersey, Salem, and Cape May and Miliville Rallroad.

THE WEST JERSEY EXPRESS COMPANY

Will stiend to all the usual branches of express business, receive, deliver and forward through other responsible express companies, tô all parts of the country, any article entrusted to them. A special messenger accompanies each through train.

Philadelphia, Aug. 25, 1965.

sep16-tf

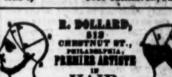

B. FRANK PALMER.

CANTON TO THE MENCAL DOLLOGE AND ren or ren "Palum Ant," Les, &c., has removed to THE STONE EDIFICE

No. 2000 Chartest St., Philada ... 4000. THERE SQUARMS WHEN OF THE OLD BEAMS.

thing for Bergles-Artholic Committee of the Committee of HAIR.

Inventor of the celebrated GOSSAMER VERTI-LATING WIG and ELASTIC BAND TOU-FACES, Instructions to cashie Ladies and Gostic-ness to measure their own heads with accuracy.

over the mark.

3.—From our to our over the top.

5.—From our to our round the forehead.

He has always ready for onle a spinedid steek of Jents' Wiga, Toupees, Ladies' Wiga, Half Wiga, Frizona, Braids, Curis, &c., beautifully manufac-ured, and as chesp as any cutablishment in the Union. Letters from any part of the world will reoms for Dyeing Ladies' and Gentlemen's not arwiy

ANOTHER ENGAGEMENT!

While the attention of the enemy is fully ENGAGED BY GRANT, attention of the general public is no less carnest-ly engaged by which is accomplishing wonders in the way of beau-ifying heads that age or sickness, or caprisions na-ure had disfigured with unsightly hues. Milion ays truly that "PEACE HATH ITS VICTORIES less renowned than war."

CRISTADORO'S HAIR DYE,

Manufactured by J. CRISTADORO, No. 6 Aster House, New York. Sold by Druggists. Applied by all Hair Dressers. Price, Si, Si, Si and &I per box, according to size Cristadoro's Hair Preservative

Is invaluable with his Dye, as it imparts the utmost softness, the most beautiful gloss, and great vitality to the Hair. Price, 50 cents, 81 and 83 per bottle, according to size. THE BEST STRENTHENING PLASTER IS THE POROUS PLASTER OF DR. ALLCOCK.—They are warranted to keep good twenty pears, but may be returned for fresh plasters without charge. IMPORTANT QUALITIES. They will cure a weakness of the Back, Pais is the Side, a Lameness of the Knee or of the Ankles, or Cold Peet, sooner and with more comfort than

KROXVILLE, ALBANY Co., Jan. 16, 1849. Dr. T. ALLCOCK .- Dear Sir :- Seventeen years ago I was sorely injured in my back. At length I was induced to use your plasters. I were one constantly for six months, and did more hard work during that six months than in the preceding fiftern years. I have not worn a plaster for over eighteen months, and have had no return of the gnawing pais and weakness in my back, but have been entirely and weakness in my back, but have been well. I am your obedient servant, JOHN G. CRARY. Principal Agency, Brandreth House, New York. By the yard or single plaster. Sold by all Dealers in Medicines. decis-2terw

AWAY with SPECTACLES. OLD EYES

MADE NEW, without Speciacle, Doctors or Medicine Pamphlet mailed free Address E. B. FOOTE, M. D., 1130 Broadway, New York. dec9-3m

AWAY with UNCOMFORTABLE TRUSSES!

PARENTS take care of Your CHILDREN!

COMPORT AND CURE FOR THE RUP-TURED. Sent free. Address. E. B. FOOTE, M. D., 1130 Broadway, New York. dec9-3m

CROUP...Its Cause, Cure, and Aous it may be pre-conted. Sent free. Address, E. B. POOPE, M. D., 1136 Brondway, New York.

PRESTIDIGITATION: Or, MAGIC MADE EABY,—A New Book, just out.
The most complete book on Legerdemain, sleight of Hand, &c., ever published. Nothing like it. It tells how to cut a man's head off, and put it a yard from his body; how to cut off your nose; how to cat alic; Langhing Gas, Rope-lying Feat; the Wander-Ful Hat, and Besty 200 other asteonding Magical, of Chemical, and Optical performances of the best Magicians, Wisards, and Frestidigitateurs. 64 page, with illustrated cover, Price only 20 cents; eight for 81—mailed free. Satisfaction georanteed.

Address E. HUNTER & CO., octil-3m Publishers, Hinsdale, N. H.

ett and numer.

Case in the United

The Devil Right.

The Devil Right.

Dr. H.—, who is paster of an Orthodex church, had been for some time anneyed by the forwardness of a lay brother to "speak" whenever an opportunity was offered, to the frequent exclusion of these whose remarks had a greater tendency to edification. This had been carried so far that the paster, whenever he stated that an "opportunity would now be offered for any brother to give an exhortation," had always a secret dread of the lequacious member. On one special occasion, the latter prefaced a prosy, incoherent harangue with an account of a controversy he had been currying on with the great adversary. "By frienda," said he, "the devil and I have been fighting for more than twenty minutes; he told me not to speak to night, but I determined I would; he said some of the rest could speak better than I, but still I felt that I could not keep silent; he even whispered that I could not keep silent; he even whispered that I could not keep silent; he even whispered that I spoke toe often, and that nobody wanted to hear me; but I was not to be put down that way, and now I have gained the victory, I must tell you all that is in my heart." Then followed the tedious harangue aforesaid. As they were coming out of the session-room, the good paster inclined his head so that his mouth approached the ear of the militant member, and whispered, "Brother, I think the devil was right!"

TRIBURATHIC FREAK.—Of all the freaks of the telegraph the following is the most laughable which has come under our personal knowledge: Not long since a graduate from one of our eastern theological schools was called to the pastoral charge of a church in the extreme southwest. When about to start for his new parish, he was unexpectedly detained by the incapacity of his presbytery to ordain him. In order to explain his non-arrival at the appointed time, he sent the following telegram to the deacons of the church. "Presbytery lacked a quorum to ordain." In the course of its journey the message got strangely metamorphosed, and reached the astoniched deacons in this shape, "Presbytery tacked a worm on to Adam." The sober church officers were sorely discomposed and mystifed, but after grave consultation, concluded it was the minister's facetious way of announcing that he had got married, and accordingly proceeded to provide lodgings for two instead of one.

SFIRITUAL DUTT.—Bayard Taylor says:—"I know an American author who was once bored for a long time by a female acquaintance for sympathy and tender appreciation of her ideas of spiritual duty. 'Mr. Plutarch,' she would say, 'is there a more serene and sublime satisfaction in life than that of discovering your spiritual duty, and then conscientiously performing it? Have you not often, in your own soul, felt this tranquil blies?' The author bore this for a time, but human patience has its limits. 'No,' he answered at last, 'I hate to do my spiritual duty. If I know what it is, I won't do it; but, madam, there is one thing which does fill me with a sereme and sublime satisfaction, and recombiles me to the hollowness of life.' 'Pray, pray, what is it?' she asked eagerly.' Madam, it is a pig's nose boiled with cabbage!' SPIRITUAL DUTY .- Bayard Taylor says :-" "Madam, it is a pig's nose boiled with cabbage! was his quiet answer." He was never forgiven

"KETCHING HIS ETE."-A talkative and boase "Ketching his Eyr."—A talkative and boastful member of the Minnesota Legislature, while decoanting to his constituents upon the great things he would have done for their interests at the previous session of the legislative body, if he had only had a fair obsance, &c., declared that of everal occasions he had "struggled for the floor" in vain, and that at last, when he got the floor" in vain, and that at last, when he got the floor, he found it impossible to "catch the speaker's spa." "Couldn't ketch his spe!" exclaimed an old trap; "in the crowd. "You jee' take one o' my mink traps with you next time, and I'll warrant you to ketch his eye the very fust smap."

A Loving Wire.—A farmer going to get his grist ground at a mill, borrowed a bag of one of his neighbors, the poor man was knocked under the water-wheel, and the bag with him, he was drowned. When the melancholy news was brought to his wife, she exclaimed, "My gracious, what a fun there'll be about that bag!"

THE BEST CHURCH—A sailor in giving his opinion of the religious denominations, seld, "I like the Episcopaliane best," and when asked why, said, "In all other churches you must sit mum and take the jaw, but in the Episcopal church you can jaw back."

A PARTY TO BE AMAMED Or.—Swift says, when a man avers that he is of no party, he certainly belongs to a party, but it is one of which he is estamed.

CUTED WATCHNAM,-A man was see tenced to four years' imprisonment for simply keeping watch and guard of another man's pro-

CLARA.—"We are going to get up a dance, Mr. Chiffey; you must let me find you a partner."

Mr. CHIFFET.—"Well, thank you, no: not to-night. The fact is, I've had a very hard day's nting."

ALBUER.—A young country gentleman requested a poetic writer to address some lines to a young lady of his acquaintance, and write them in her album. The poet replied, that not having the pleasure of being acquainted with the lady, not even knowing her by sight, which was particularly important, he could say nothing, of course, of her mental or personal accomplishments. "Oh, if that is all!" cried the young man, "I can tall you all about it! Black eyes and red cheeks, paints beautifully, plays on the piano, and dances the best that ever you saw!" "You shall have the whole inventory," said the poet.

STRAM DEFINED.—At a railway station an old lady said to a very pompous looking gentleman who was talking about steam communication, "Pray, sir, what is steam?" "Steam, ma'am, is, ah!—steam is, ah! ah! steam is steam!" "I knew that chap couldn't tell ye," said a rough-looking-fellow standing by. "But steam is a bucket of water in a tremendous perspiration."

A DEET FORGIVEN.—An impertment fellow was met by a gentleman whom he had insulted, who observed that he oved him a good drub-bing. "Never mind, siz," said the fellow, "I'll forgive you the debt."

A NEW POSTAL LAW.

WRITTEN FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

Boftly let me approach my subject, for I am about to point an index at faults in high places, therefore warily should I draw up the preliminaries for attack, but in the absorbing interest of the onset, I may be excused should I use weapons both piercing and trenchant.

A few months ago while glancing at a notice of a new postal arrangement, I was not powerfully exercised, because my personal rights had not, as yet, suffered practical infringement. Since that time I have had a somewhat sad experience which has served to call me out, and whatever brilliant thing I may hereafter utter, do not unwisely ascribe it to an unusual cerebral development, but to the exciting circumstances which will refer to the aforesaid reprehensible arrangement. Not long since in a city called Troublous, it came to pass that I received a note from the Postmaster summoning me immediately and unreservedly to the dead-letter office. I had forgotten the new postal law to the effect that all isotters not paid in full at the receiving office should be treated to an official and relaxing trig, to Washington, but supposed that my last bon-hon to Rara Amelia, to which I had represonal to the summer of the plant of t should be treated to an official and relaxing trip, to Washington, but supposed that my last bon-bon to Sara Amelia, to which I had generously signed my name in full, Henri A. Dolt, Eq., (I do not affix my real name to my effusions) had been carried to Washington, and that some of those (not to say prying) clerks were an fait with my style of writing a billet douz, which supposition somewhat excited my ire, and I concluded that they might take it back again and use it for another chip to their legal bonfire. But, after feeding my indignation for three days on such condiments as my landlady set before me, (indigestion is said to favor anger,) curiosity, that perplexing virtue, supposed to belong entirely to the gentler sex, and which I suppose I inherited from my mother, got the better of me, and I repaired to the Post-office and claimed the letter.

I repaired to the Post-office and claimed the letter.

Within the mutilated envelope I found six photographs, which had set out with the intention of reaching me with a two cent stamp for a passport, but they were interdicted and doomed—had been sent on their travels in an opposite direction. Somewhere on their pleasant journey they had met with an adventure in the form of a plunge bath in some of those interesting rivers at which the care so often pay their respects on the route between New York and Washington, and there were the six representative Dulta, which taper fingers had carefully and correctly imbued with rainbow hues, in a conglomeration of colored pasts. I was, in fact, reproduced in India ink, carmina, burnt-umber, and India red indicoriminately. I lay my six doubles in a row, a tear stole down my manly cheek; even the unrelenting P. M. looked at me rather feelingly. It was not the money expended on these mutilated countenances, I sighed, although I may explain to you that it was a sum, but it is the indignity which I have suffered from that lose, (it began to fourst upon me with new force,) and waxing in wrath, I posmearded the official to send them back to the motropolia, and inquire into the utility of keeping u man waiting for his own when his was exposted to pay the same when it was received; but I went away secretly congrutating myself that I flived in a country where each individual could cry out stoutly against wrong.

L'Ecrivasties.

AGRICULTURAL.

Cosmo's Column. WRITTEN FOR THE SATURDAY STREETS POST.

LEARNING TO LIVE.

A friend to whom we gave what we thought a bit of good advice some eighteen meaths since, writes us from the near neighborhood of one of the principal towns of an adjoining state,

My dear sir: Acting upon your advice, I resolved, very soon after receiving it, to live for a few years longer by God's help, like a man, instead of killing myself like a fool, as I have been doing by inches these ten years.

The first look out was to secure such a place as recommended, and, after a week's hunt, I succeeded admirably. Found a sang stone-house—seven rooms—summer kitches, pump of excellent water at the door, good, dry cellar, nice cow stable, two acres of ground, all substantially fenced in,—rent, sixty dollars a year, and the place on a turnpike less than two miles from town. As my rent in Philadelphia was $300, you see there is a handsome item saved in that direction.

As we took possession here in September, of

in that direction.

As we took possession here in September, of course there was no gardening to be done, but acting upon your suggestion, I devoted two days in every week to preparations for the spring campaign, and as the ground had been but slovenly cultivated, it needed all the digging, rooting out noxious roots, and exterminating weeds, that I could turn my hand to. But by the end of November, I had the three-quarters of an acre that I designed for a garden, clear of all rubbish, and had gathered up from various sources a very respectable compost heap.

As I had leased the place for ten years, with the privilege of renewing at the same rate, or purchasing at any time at $1,100, I thought about starting some fruits and berries; so I put in 1,000 strawberry plants, 40 dwarf pear troes, about starting some fruits and berries; so I put in 1,000 strawberry plants, 40 dwarf pear trees, 500 currant stocks along the borders, 12 thrifty best sorts plum trees close to the house—I am going to see if I cannot conquer King Carculio—and then, out in the pasture part of the lot.

Cally's Feet Deresto As Terraping.—Boll eight feet until the meat leaves the bones, and then the pasture part of the lot.

Cally's Feet Deresto As Terraping.—Boll eight feet until the meat leaves the bones, and then remove all the bones; put them into a pan with half a pint of the rich gravy in which they were boiled, and add two large spoonsful of butter; rob the yolks of three hard-boiled eggs with a small teaspoonful of mustard, a very little coyenne, and salt to the taste. When well incorporated with the eggs, sit all together into the feet and gravy, let it simmer ten minutes, I have never heard from it since.

forgot to say that my dyspepsia went away somewhere before the middle of November, and I have never heard from it since.

During the winter, bosides my three days per week of literary labor, my wife and myself, by odd spella, rejuvenated old oil paintings, colored photographs, made rustic frames, and other little jobs for our richer neighbors, enough to buy a fine cow, two nice shoats, pay for ploughing and all the help I should need in planting.

I bought $18 worth of nitrogenized guano, which my neighbors assured me would be all I should require, turning in my compost heap, which had grown considerably during the winter, along with it. As soon as the spring opened, I opened my gardening campaign vigorously. I had a fine lot of peas in the ground, sown on a compost of chicken guano, salt, charcoal, and loam, according to formula furnished, and covered four inches deep as directed, as soon as the frost was well out of the ground. Then I had 250 tomato plants, 100 egg plants, and 200 cucumber vines, all forwarded according to instructions, in blossom, and in the ground as soon as there was a certainty of no more frost. The remainder of my garden space I got into early cabbages, letture, and China and early Valentine beans. The 14 sores of grass land was pleughed early, put in good tith, and planted half an acre with early Tucarora corn, hills two and a half feet, apart, four stalks to each hill; half an acre was planted with "white sprouts" and Monitor potatoes, in hills three feet apart, and manured in the hill. The remaining quarter of an acre was planted with "white sprouts" and Monitor potatoes, in hills three feet apart, and manured in the hill. The remaining quarter of an acre was planted with "white sprouts" and Monitor potatoes, in hills three feet apart, and manured in the hill. The remaining quarter of an acre was divided between mangel wurke, carrots, and parmips, for the benefit of "Clover" and piggies.

In April, Mrs. Chower gave us a fine heifer eaft, which we conceiled to make a cow of, and after send to us for supplies, and we were kept busy smough jicking and delivering. Two of the hotels hid $1,75 per peek for our peek, $2,00 per peek for tomatons, $1,50 per peek for our early beams, $20 cents a piece for committees, and 8 cents a head for letters. That was consistent and 8 cents a head for letters. That was consistent and dewn cor tariff, but even then our produce here a premium, as they told us the quality was better than they could get in the market. Next our corn, eabbages, potatoes, and egg-plants came in several days ahead of all competition, and at corresponding prices.

Thus we have gene through the season 'thus far, and this morning, on balancing accounts, I find the nett income of our garden $678 29, and we are not nearly through yet, for where my half nere of corn grew, I have a half acre of as fine turnips as ever grew, and the potate part of the field is bearing two thousand famous cabbages.

of the final is boaring two thousand landers cabbages.

Now considering that we have had our own supply of vagetables, have twenty-five bushels of potatons in the cellar for winter, as many bases, turnips, carrots, parsnips, and cabbages as we can care for; that every hour's labor, with the exception of ploughing sud planting, has been performed by Nelly and myself, neither of us ever having done an hour's out-door work until we came here in our lives. I say that, taking all these circumstances into consideration, I think we have done remarkably well for the first year.

tion, I think we have done remarkably well for the first year.

At Christmas, our two pigs will very nearly fill three barrels, two of which we shall sell, as we keep no help to help eat pork. Next year our strawberries, currants, and grapes will begin to pay dividends. I shall seed a half-acre with timothy and clover mixed, in the spring with oats; then I shall manage with roots and corn blades, cabbage leaves, and such like, to make my two acres subsist Clover and Dalsy without any other winter supplies, though for their health's sake I shall pasture them eight months in the year.

in the year.

We have learned to become our own waiters, to milk, make butier, to mend our own clothes and garden implements, and, better than all, we have learned to be independent, healthy, and happy, and to become producers instead of consumers.

sumers.

And now, my dear sir, if among your circle of city acquaintances, you know of another miserable, dyspeptic good-for-nothing, go at him as you did at me. Disg and din at him—give him no respite until you drive him out into the country to learn to live, and contribute something towards the support of others as I have done. Very gratefully yours, M. C. G.

RECEIPTS.

POTTED VEAL AND BACON,-Out thin slices of POTTED VEAL AND BACON.—Cut thin slices of veal and the same quantity of nice becon; then rub together some dried, sweet basil or summer savory, very fine, until reduced to a powder, and lay in a stew-pan a layer of bacon, then a layer of veal, and on this sprinkle the powdered herbs, a little grated borse-radish, then again some bacon and veal, and then herbs and horse-radish and a little salt; on this squeeze a lemon and grate the rind, then cover very tightly and put it into the oven to bake for three bours, then take it out and drain eff all the gravy, pour over it a little mushroom catsup, and press it over it a little mushroom catsup, and press down with a heavy weight, then put it away a pot tightly covered. This is nice for tea.

a pot tightly covered. This is nice for tea.

CROQUETA.—Chop very finely any aort of cold meats with bacon or cold ham, rub a teaspoonful of summer savory very fine, pound twelve allspice finely; boil one egg hard, and chop it very fine, and one onion minoed fine; mix this all together, then grate a lemon and add a little salt; when well mixed, moisten it with walnut catsup, form it into pear-shaped balls, and dredge well with flour; at the blossom ends stick in a whole clove. Then have boiling fat or dripping in the pan, dredge each pear again well with flour, lay them in the boiling fat and fry a nice brown; then take them out and lay on a soft cloth in a hot place to drain. Serve hot.

incorporated with the eggs, stir all together into the feet and gravy, let it simmer ten minutes, and just before dishing add two wine-glasses of good cooking wine, and simmer again before serving. The broth is very nice for soup, or will make a good jelly seasoned and cleared with the whites of eggs as directed in the receipt for calves' feet jelly.

SWEETBREADS should be soaked in water, NWETBREADS should be soaked in water, put for eight or ten minutes in boiling water, and then into clear cold spring-water, to blanch. They may be cut in slices, or in dice, and put into fricassess of meat or ragouts, or they may be served as a separate dish.

SWEETBREADS—ANOTHER WAY.—Two or three good throat sweetbreads will make a dish; blanch as above until fit to eat, take them up and lay them in cold water; when cold dry them well, egg and bread crumb them with or without herbs, put them on a dish and brown them in the oven; garnish them with mushroom sauce, or endives, or spinach, or tomato will do if ap-proved of.

SWEETHREADS FRICASSEED—WHITE.—Blanch

and then cut them in slices. To a pint of veal gravy put a thickening of flour and butter, a tablespoonful of cream, grated lemon peel and nutmeg, and white pepper, to flavor. Blew ten minutes, add the sweetbreads, let them simmer transfer minutes.

THE ARGEL OF PRACE.—A celebrated general one day, after suffering for a long time from the prattle of a well-meaning lady on the "crueltier of war," and the coming of the "Angel of Peace to all nations," and such-like suff remarked that he hoped when the "Angel of Peace" did come to all nations, she well come with two wings—one of infantry and the other of cavalry.

REASONS FOR NOT JOINIPO THE CHURCH.—
Two lawyers in Lowell were returning from court when the one said to the other, "I've a setien to join the Rev. Mr. ——'s church—been debating the matter for some time. What do you think of it?" "Wouldn't do it," said the other. "Well, why?" "Because it sould do you no possible good, while it would be a great injury to the church."

WALTER POR THE SATURDAY STREETS POST. I am composed of 56 letters. My 1, 22, 15, 19, is something used by-

My 4, 24, 14, 6, 18, 26, 13, is a previous six My 13, 18, 16, is a species of fair. My 9, 20, 10, is a minusel. My 9, 24, 21, 18, 18, is a repetite. My 9, 26, 21, 18, 18, is a repetite. My 10, 28, 21, 28, is a Dutch coin. My 4, 23, 21, is a fair found in the Senses of My 10, 20, 23, 21, is a fair found in the Senses of My 10, 20, 25, 21, 18, 12, is a quadraped for in Madaganous. My 14, 24, 10, 2, 17, 20, 23, 13, 21, is an optimate in instrument. My whole is the motto of one of the Uni States.

Oincinnati, O.

Enigma. WRITTER FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING P

"CINCINNATUR"

I am composed of 37 letters. My 7, 23, 27, 32, 12, is a contributor to Th Riddler.

My 4, 8, 30, 14, 36, 38, 25, 1, 30, 28, is the space measured by a revolving body.
My 29, 11, 31, 3, 16, is a small but excellent fruit. My 18, 84, 9, 15, 22, 18, 36, is a quadraped non extinot.

extinct.
My 9, 24, 17, 5, 13, is poison.
My 6, 10, 21, 19, is a garment.
My 35, 10, 37, is an industrious insect.
My whole is what every one should do.
Bryan.
F. M. P. 11

WRITTER FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST

I am composed of 12 letters. My 8, 12, 6, is a synonym for "young man."
My 1, 3, 8, 4, is a description of medicine.
My 9, 2, 11, 4, is an abbreviation for a man'

mame.

My 1, 5, 6, 6, 4, 7, is an article used in bo

My 10, 7, 7, 4, is a part of the body.

My whole is a city in the Union.

C. H. W. M.

Charade.

WRITTEN FOR THE SATURDAY SYRPENS FO

Purer than dew-drops, gemming
The bosoms of sweet flowers;
Gayer than music ringing,
Thre' hope's exultant hours;
Brighter than all earth's brightness
O'er woodland, sky, or lea,
Is my first in joyous beauty,
With untried spirit free.
My second, worn by many,
Some humbly, some with grace,
Is met with, often shading
Some fair and levely face.
Of life my whole is sweetest,
And as the long years flee,
We look back with vain yearning,
For that no more to be.

For that no more to be.

Baltimore, Md.

Double Rebus.

WRITTEN FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

A boy's name. A color.

A boy's name. A pronoun.

A Greek letter.

A name of Ireland.

A large city of Italy.

My initials and finals form the names of two Mathematical Problem.

WRITTEN POR THE SATURDAY SYRRIDG POST.

What are the axes of a maximum ellipse in-ribed in a quadrant of a circle whose radius s 10?

Pine Grove, Pa. REUBEN BARTO.

An answer is requested.

Arithmetical Problem

WRITTEN POR THE SATURDAY SYRKING POOF.

A young man was informed that it would re-uire 91 square yards of cloth to make him a uit of clothes. The cloth that he purchased is 1 4-5 yards wide, and on sponging will shrink 8½ per cent. in width and length. Required, the number of yards of the above cloth to make him a full suit.

JAS. M. GREENWOOD.

Diophantine Problem.

WRITTEN FOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

Find four positive integral cube numbers such that the sum of any three of them shall be a rational cube.

ARTEMAS MARTIN.

Franklin, Venengo co., Pa.

An answer is requested.

Conundrums.

Conundrumes.

What look frequently represents union without unity? Ann.—Wedtock.

What look is most in request among physicians? Ann.—Lockjans.

What look must be looked for out of doors and on the ground? Ann.—Herslock.

What look is generally lost in the decline of life? Ann.—Lock of hair.

Why is a carpenter more ugly than other men? Ann.—Because they have studded (studded) the heavens ever since the creation.

Answers to Last.

ENIGMA—William Charles, Pitteburgh, Penssylvania. ENIGMA—Charles Carroll. BOUBLE REBUS—Panther, loopard. (Pearl, sle, Neve, trap, Havana, ear, reed.) RIDDLE—Speak;
peak, pea. CHARADE—Henry. (Hen, 170.)

Answer to B. H. Walter's Charade, published Oct. 7th.—Treth.

Tire attention of the mistrees of a family wallately called to the fact that a little colored girl was constantly seen lying or the granuplat, with her face turned up to the sun. Upon being questioned why she assumed that pecture, also answered, "Why, misses always lays do ting on de grass what she waste to make white. want to get white, too."

ning,